

The baby with bath water?

It would be naive to think that the apparent decision to do away with the cemetery board of trustees, as conveyed to two of the members on Dec. 7 by the mayor, is a spur-of-the-moment act. Nor is it an equilateral act. The mayor must have discussed it with the members of village council.

Where?

Certainly not in the open sessions of the council, for the official minutes disclose no such discussion.

The only justifiable conclusion is that the mayor and the village council conducted their discussions in executive session, the purpose of which they labelled as "to discuss personnel".

It is a reasonable bet that precious little of those discussions related per se to the trustees of the cemetery, three men who among them count over 215 years.

What was discussed, we'll wager — and we confess this is wholly an intuitive guess, is that the principal employee of the trustees may have engaged in excesses that some councilmen and the mayor cannot stomach. The council and mayor have evidently concluded the trustees cannot, do not or will not stand up to this employee and the way to deal with the problem is to dissolve the board on which they serve.

So far, the mayor has said in public the reason for dissolving the board is to "streamline the administration of public business". The last time this happened, almost entirely because one powerful councilman had a scab on his nose vis-a-vis the board of trustees of public affairs, by vote of five to one (that one vote is currently a member of the council) the board of trustees of public affairs, three members by law and custom politically accountable to the electorate, was abolished in favor of a village administrator, not at any time then or since politically accountable to the electorate.

We presume that the council means to deal with the employee in another fashion, one that will displease him, demean the incumbent cemetery trustees and perhaps touch off a sympathetic implosion by other village staff. Time will tell.

A very considerable part of the problem is that the pay and perquisites of the position are the result of a peculiar situation that obtained earlier, when the predecessor of the employee was direct kin of the principal law enforcement officer of the village. His age and condition of life were such that hardly anyone, least of all the trustees of the cemetery, wished to incur the displeasure of the sexton's kin by restricting his access to pay and perquisites that, in time, were not justified by the demands of the assignment.

The incumbent sexton costs the village $14,874.70 a year: $10,238 in salary, $4,636.70 in perquisites.

It is not here appropriate to debate the rights or wrongs of the pay scale. What is important is that the scale of pay and benefits should be in reasonable balance with other assignments of a similar character. Such as the park custodian, for example. If — and we simply postulate the possibility — the cemetery job is two times, or three times, or nine times as large as that of the park custodian, then set the pay and benefits scale accordingly.

The whole world knows our attitude to the concept of taxing a citizen to pay for a service that is abhorrent to him. We have said many times that burial of the dead is an economic obscenity, that society cannot afford to dedicate such large portions of its productive land close to municipalities to such idle purposes. Not to say the tax money to pay for its care. Particularly in this attitude now justified since no sect here practiced prohibits cremation of the dead, nor frowns upon it.

But whenever, over the past 33 years or so, a cemetery levy has been submitted, we have supported it and voted for it, on the grounds that as a body politic we are obligated to stand by our promises to maintain a public burial ground.

Is it too much to wish that the village council will not be so foolish as to throw the baby out please see page 3

Mrs. Strine to retire; PLSD joins consortium

Resignation of Mrs. Wayne H. Strine, Plymouth High school librarian, was accepted by Plymouth board of education Monday night.

Mrs. Strine, retiring after a long career of teaching, will leave the school as of Dec. 31.

She began her teaching career after raising a family and started out as home economics instructor in Shiloh Junior High school. Later she earned library credits and became the school librarian before taking over the high school library.

No replacement was named, but presumably it will be Mrs. Gerald Lillo, who is now the Shiloh school librarian.

Approval was given by the board to join OME-RESA health insurance consortium.

The consortium now has 30 districts as members, but expects to be up to 60 by the first of the year.

The rate paid for health care coverage is the same as the present Blue Cross coverage. Last year the district's rate was raised 33 percent. Jeffrey Slauson, superintendent, told the board the 1988 rate will most likely be more. Cost will remain the same as what was paid this year, $179.96 for each policy each month.

The consortium, which will be managed by the Jefferson county board of education, is uniquely placed. Each district will pay its money into its own special account and pay any claims out of it. Should more claims be received than what has been paid in locally, the other members who end the year in the black will share equally to cover any deficits of the other districts.

Slauson said this year, of the 30 districts who are members, only four ended in the red.

He pointed out that each school will be assigned a certain person to deal with on claims, which will be easier than trying to deal with Blue Cross.

Coverage will also include organ transplants, which are not covered by most policies because such surgery is considered experimental.

The board has set the Jan. 11 meeting as its organizational meeting, to begin at 6:45 p.m. Budget hearing is at 7:15 p.m. before it proceeds with the regular monthly meeting.

Mrs. Allen Carey was approved as a tutor for Tony Boien, a high school pupil who was seriously injured in a vehicle collision last February. He is attending some classes at the school, but cannot support a whole school day.

Annual adult farm program will begin Jan. 5 and continue each Tuesday at the high school until Mar. 20.

Beginning with the 1988-89 school year, full credits will be given for vocal and instrumental music. Slauson pointed out most schools in the area give the full credit.

Bonds for the superintendent and president of the board in the amount of $20,000 will again be provided by Nationwide Insurance Co. at the annual cost of $300.

At the request of the treasurer, the board will repay the state $2,365.66 which the district at the received in two specially funded programs. In one instance what was listed as teaching aids in the special education program are now considered equipment by the state and was disallowed. In the other instance, special tutoring hours were estimated more than what was needed.

A slight mix-up over which county has jurisdiction over a house in Raut 598 now owned by the Barringer family, either Richland or Crawford, has been discovered after 60 years of the property considered to be in Crawford County. As a result any children in the house attended Buckeye Central schools.

The two districts along with the two county boards have agreed to transfer it to Buckeye Central, which was requested by the family because of out-of-district tuition costs. The Plymouth district will trade off 24 acres and receive 105.69 acres, which includes property owned by Joseph J. Laach and Thomas and Maurice Cooke. Net increase in taxes will amount to $80 annually.

Over the years Plymouth has not received any tax money because of the mix-up and not any state foundation money for the fiscal as nothing has been lost financially.

The transfer is to be fully approved next month and will be effective July 1, 1988.

No action by council on contract for trash

No action was taken by village council Dec. 8 to award a contract for a single village trash hauler.

Although it was discussed in detail, neither Mayor Keith A. Hebble nor the five council members who were present suggest a motion to vote upon.

Councilman E. Adrian Cole was absent. He was one of the three council members, along with Roy Barber and Bill Taubee, to vote in favor of a single hauler, which would be Shaskey Trash Removal, Shelby, the low bidder of the five received.

Had it come to a vote, most likely Councilman H. Lee Welker, Everett Eckstein and Mrs. A. L. Paddock, Jr., would have voted against it. This would have been a three to two vote, thus eliminating the mayor breaking a tie vote again.

Mrs. Robert Rhine, one of the householders at the meeting, asked the council why it was doing this to the village.

Taubee replied that with rising costs of the use of the Richland and Huron county landfills, the thinking was that if one hauler had the village to serve, the rate would be cheaper for everyone and that the village could better control any increases in rates at the landfills.

Here's new twist to make jelly roll

By AUNT LIZ
There is not a grandparent alive who cannot tell you a cute, funny story that one of his little ones came up with.

We are no different.

The teacher of our second grade granddaughter got the idea that the kids should bring pictures of their grandparents and the rest of the kids would ask what they did. So Camie did. She is a dead-ringer for her mother at the same age. Surely there are those who remember how cute she was.

When it came her turn to show the pictures, she came up with her other grandparents, both retired. Asked what they do, she said "Nothing".

Then she got to her other grandfather and was asked what he did. Her answer was "he makes paper". At that point she was asked was it lined, like second graders use, which threw her for a couple of seconds. Then she said, "No, just like the Los Angeles Times" which, of course the kids could relate to.

It was flattering, considering that is one of this country's greatest papers.

Still my favorite story of kids is about her mother, which I can remember vividly as though it was yesterday and not 1953.

Her mother and uncle were in kindergarten and had a dear friend, Penny, an older woman. Penny was six, they were only four and five, so what Penny said was so real and believable.

A few days before Christmas I overheard them having a very, very serious conversation. What I heard was "Penny says Santa Claus is just pretend."

There was no question that they were going to do a little pretending to keep us happy and not spoil a thing.

So they went to bed Christmas eve and we went around the corner to rescue some things that were stashed at a friend's house for safekeeping from big eyes.

Of course they got up at the crack of dawn on THAT day while Mom and Dad lounged a little longer in bed. After all you do not go visiting on Christmas Eve without egg nog.

So down the stairs they went to our tree. Two seconds later Suzie came racing up the stairs screaming. "He's been here, he's been here."

It was a nice surprise to know that Santa Claus really existed.

You can do some surprises, too, and this will help those who like desserts and count calories at the same time.

It is for an old fashioned jelly roll with a new twist.

First, grease a cookie sheet, then cover it with wax paper also greased and sprinkled with flour.

Beat five eggs at room temperature with a half cup of sugar until fluffy and light colored.

Have ready in another bowl a half cup of flour, a half teaspoon of baking powder. Beat this into the egg mixture carefully.

Spread it out in the pan and bake until the sides spring back at 350 degrees.

When baked, invert pan on a towel sprinkled generously with powdered sugar. Remove the wax paper and roll up and let it sit a couple hours while you do something else.

Unroll and spread two cups of apricot preserves over and re-roll.

To make it pretty, spread some more of the apricot over the top and place walnut halves down the middle, spaced where you will cut each slice.

Two complain on trash issue

Garbage issue has been tabled until next council meeting. Contracts have not been awarded and if not awarded the issue could be dropped.

Council did have a representative from Shaky Hauling, who will haul garbage for the village at a rate of $4.83 a month. Council did not discuss the fee that would be tacked on for the village's share. Also, any raises that the landfill will have (and this is a certainty) also will be added as they occur. These changes are to be added to out utility bills.

What is the matter with free enterprise? Whenever there is a monopoly, the people in charge have you in their power. If a contract is let, never again will you be able to choose in which manner your garbage is disposed of. What will be the next freedom we have taken away from us? Of course, exemptions to the garbage pickup will be made in certain cases. This will not be fair treatment across the board. The mayor stated some exemptions will be made. This will not apply to elderly or low-income people.

There were at least eight Plymouth people at the council meeting and not one was in favor of the village taking over our choices. In fact, at all the previous council meetings that I have attended there has not been one person who has spoken for it.

These council members are against the garbage issue: Mrs. Elizabeth Paddock, Mr. H. Lee Walker and Mr. Everett Skelton. Those in favor of passing were Mr. Roy Barber, Mr. William Taubee (who will no longer be on council starting January 1988) and Mr. Adrian Cole. The mayor, Mr. Keith Hebble is also for it and in fact, the deciding vote on passage. Newest council member is Mr. John Fazzini.

If you feel strongly about the matter of free choice, please call your council members and attend the next meeting on Jan. 12, 1988, at 7 p.m.

Thank you,
Virginia Robinson
(Mrs. Wayne Robinson)

After being at the council meeting Dec. 8, I feel the council members don't all want to act in the way most people feel about the garbage issue.

If you want your freedom of choice or to haul your own garbage you must let your council members know how you feel.

Please call them
Thank you,
Jane Whittington

Sir: First of all I want you to know that I have been enjoying my gift subscription to The Plymouth Advertiser. It is like getting a letter from home each week.

I attended 12 years of school in Plymouth, and graduated from Plymouth High school in 1961. I wish to particularly express my gratitude to Mrs. Fred Port, who was my first grade teacher, for the excellent educational beginning that she gave me. She also took our class to the Plymouth library, which helped instill in me a love of reading. Perhaps, that is what eventually led me to become a librarian!

I have visited the new Plymouth library and it is beautiful. I wish to thank Rhea Stambaugh for all of her effort and money which culminated in this new building. Through her generosity my nieces and nephews, as well as every one in the Plymouth area, can pursue their reading interests. It is a most valuable asset to your community. I also developed a love of music as I studied clarinet in the Plymouth schools. That interest took me to Kent State university, where I studied vocal and instrumental music and graduated in 1965. Today I sing in my church choir as well as with a large community group affiliated with the University of Miami.

Thank you to the Plymouth schools and Plymouth library for a good basic education that enabled me to be where I am today, head of the circulation department of the main library in the Miami-Dade Public Library system, Miami, Fla.

Sincerely,
Shirley A. Hawk Broesch

Holy land impresses, depresses visitor at end of journey

What better place to be in December, during the days' leading to the anniversary of the founding of Christendom, than the Holy Land and Jerusalem, particularly if one is a lifelong ecumenical Christian who has given countless hours to the propagation of her faith?

Answer: none.

Why says so? Fred J. Port, retired first grade teacher in Plymouth schools and for many years lay delegate of the Plymouth and Shiloh United Methodist churches to the annual conference, has just completed a whirlwind, but nonetheless rewarding tour of Europe and the Near East. She accompanied her only son, C. Otis Port, an alumnus of Plymouth High school who has been for a generation science editor of Business Week magazine, and his wife. In her inimitable style, Mrs. Port recounts what struck her eye and her heart on the trip that passed through the Netherlands, West Germany, Austria, Liechtenstein, Switzerland, Italy including Sicily Greece and Egypt before reaching Israel.

"In Athens we stayed only six hours. A nice taxi driver showed us as much as he could; we have been very fortunate that we met nice folks who loved to show us around and talk about their country."

"We visited the Acropolis, the Parthenon that stands atop it, and the Olympic stadium. The first two stand in their pristine original state, the victims of time and the weather. The stadium is of a later day, a much later day, and of course it is not in ruins, but what a beautiful sight to behold; its capacity is 80,000 people who are accommodated in handsome marble.

"Our stay in Cairo was an experience I shall not soon forget. Here again we encountered at the airport a man who wished to be helpful, for a price, and we engaged him. Otis said he needed to exchange U. S. currency for Egyptian money and presto, the man took us to a bank, where the exchange was quickly made according to law.

"Then he asked if he could be of further assistance and he led us to a tour guide who promised to meet us the next day. Our newfound friend even got us a taxi to take us to our hotel. The taxi driver couldn't have treated me any better if I had been his mother. The guide said Egypt was his country and he was proud of it and he wanted the outside world to have a better opinion of it. The two men were with us for two days and showed us a number of the marvels of this ancient civilization.

"The pyramids were even bigger than I had imagined. We could see the largest one from our hotel window. Its base covers 11 acres.

"The route along the two canals leading from the Nile river was a depressing sight. The Bedouins who live there in mud huts were doing their washing in the filthy canals, the source of bilharzia, the affliction of the lower classes of Egypt that is carried by a snail that is common to the region's waterways. Their animals were so thin; one wonders how such cows could give milk.

"These people raise three crops a year so at least they have something to eat. We saw many patches of cabbage and corn.

"Since we have been in Jerusalem we have walked for miles and miles. Everywhere

Mrs. Fred J. Port, who taught three generations of Plymouth pupils in its elementary school, is touring Europe and the Middle East with her son and daughter-in-law, the C. Otis Ports.

one goes there as guides anxious to show one around, for a fee, of course. These were as nettlelike as flies.

"We spent most of our time in the Old City, characterized by many ruins.

"I was disappointed en route to Calvary that it ended at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, rather than at Golgotha. The tour guide agreed that most visitors are equally disappointed. Later we reached the garden tomb on Calvary hill and it was as I had always pictured it. To have seen it made the difficulties of the whole trip worthwhile.

"The hill resembles a human skull, which is why it is called Calvary. The Dome of the Rock, where Abraham prepared to sacrifice his son, Isaac, is a beautiful sight; the Dome is of gold and the walls of the church are fashioned of mosaic tile.

"We went to Masada today, a place that I knew nothing about before. It was an awesome sight. King Herod's fortress is on top of the hill, some 1,400 feet high. It took a Roman army three years to build a ramp up to the wall so they could send their army into combat against the Jews that remained in the fort. Rather than submit to capture by the Romans, each Jew took his own life. What a wonderful history!"

Mrs. Port's final misadventure arrived in Plymouth four days after she did.

The baby with the bath water? If the trustees of Greenlawn cemetery by their performance, or lack of it, have displeased the council and/or the mayor, they were entitled to be told so. If the council thinks the sexton has manipulated the trustees, the council should have said so.

To eliminate the system, to deprive the citizen-elect of the opportunity to express his pleasures and/or displeasures to the point of action, is not illegal; it is clear the board of trustees of the cemetery is a construction of the council and may be dismantled by it. But such action is unfair, perhaps immoral.

Girls rally to overcome Roughriders here, 50 to 41

Big Red girls blew a 16-point lead and had to rally in the fourth period here Thursday to put away Western Reserve, 50 to 41, in Firelands conference play.

Kim Gibson scored 18 and Sheri Wagers 17 to lead scoring for the home forces. The Big Red fired for field goal 40 times and converted 18 of them, including two three-pointers.

Plymouth won it at the foul line by canning 12 of 27 tries. The Roughriders outshot Plymouth from the field, 19 to 18 but they took only five free throws and burned the Big Red with three of them.

After the visitors got the hang of it Plymouth ran 12 to open the game and ran six later and then cooled down — Western Reserve was a formidable opponent. The Roughriders tied the game with 1:04 on the clock in the third period. A bucket by Trena Snipes, after she had missed two free throws with two ticks left on the clock established a 34 to 32 lead.

The visitors tied it on a shot by Kim Braden, Miss Gibson banged one down from the corner, Chris Mahl countered at 6:19 and 25 seconds later at 5:54, a free throw by Sheri Wagers gave Plymouth the lead it never gave up. She knocked one in from nine feet out thereafter and the Big Red was home free.

Western Reserve fired for field goal 13 times in the final eight minutes and scored with four. Having bagged 16 in the second quarter and 14 in the third, the result of the fourth quarter was a disappointment to Coach John Spier and the sparse contingent of Roughriders rooters.

The Plymouth defense rose to its challenge by forcing four turnovers. It scored off each.

Plymouth scored 16 in the final quarter. Miss Wagers showed she was the real goods. She took three shots at the basket and converted each of them, one a three-pointer. She missed one of four free throws.

The Big Red outrebounded Western Reserve, 28 to 25, and made fewer mistakes on offense, 20 to 26.

Plymouth's shooting performance was exceptional. It shot 40 times and put away 18 of them, two of which were three-pointers. It failed with nine of 21 free throws.

'Flu', 'flew' strike Red at Crestview

No matter how you spell it — flu or flew — that word describes what befell Plymouth girls at Crestview Dec. 8 in a 52 to 42 defeat in Firelands conference play.

"Our girls were shot through with the flu," said Coach Mike Badtacher. "Donell (Branham) could hardly stand up but she played, she's a real trooper. And some others felt the effect of the bug."

"But we also didn't rebound very well — the ball kind of flew away from us, especially on the offensive boards, and it flew so far from the basket that we were badly outshot, 19 to 13."

Crestview led by six after eight minutes and by 13 at the half. Plymouth managed 16 points in each of the two periods of the second half, but it was too little, too late. The Cougars scored 19 in the third quarter and 10 in the final one.

Crestview outrebounded Plymouth, 36 to 27. It made one fewer mistake on offense at 20 to 21.

As was to be expected, the home team shot well at its home baskets. Crestview unloaded 53 times, scoring with 19, one of them a three-pointer. It missed 16 of 29 free throws.

For its part, Plymouth fired only 44 times with 13 successes and it missed eight of 24 penalty shots.

Hall's shot ends tie with Mounties

Co-Capt. Terry Hall converted a shot at 5:41 of the final period of a Firelands conference contest here Saturday to lead Plymouth to hard-fought 60 to 56 conquest of Mapleton.

It was remarkable that the visitors could present such formidable opposition, considering they were subjected to a demoralizing whipping the night before.

Plymouth has found a shooting guard.

His name is Todd Wilson. He led all Red scorers with 18 points, including one three-pointer.

It is still searching for a point guard who can score consistently. Hall missed three bunny shots Saturday night. Even so, he was five-of-15, good for 10 points.

But for the contribution of Wilke Schutte, the big West German, Plymouth would have been beaten.

Schutte was afforded nine free throws, of which he converted seven. And he scored four field goals, all in all totalling 15 points for his night's work.

This boy shows improvement each time out. He does not make the same mistake twice. The value of such a player will become more evident late in January.

The Big Red shot for field goal 67 times and hit the target 24 times, an average of just under 36 per cent, not enough to win in this league. Not on a consistent basis, anyway.

The Mounties fired 49 shots, converting 19, of which seven were three-pointers. The shooting percentage was just under 39 per cent.

Where Mapleton was weak was consistency in maintaining possession. They lost the ball without getting off a shot 26 times. But they rebounded 24 shots.

Plymouth committed 15 turnovers and took down 19 rebounds.

The Big Red ran 12 points early in the second quarter to overcome a Mountie lead of 11 to 9. And later in the same period it ran six.

Plymouth led by six at the half, 31 to 25.

Mapleton came out for the third period with its tail over the dashboard. It ripped off 12 unanswered points to tie it at 34. In fact, there were eight changes of the lead and six times when it was tied.

The Big Red got only 37 points from its starters. This is hardly enough, particularly on the home floor.

The bench — Schutte, Jeff Bloomfield and Eric Breznicki — produced 23.

Rock Mazza, the Mapleton coach, engaged in a dispute with the referees at 3:41 of the second quarter and was assessed a technical foul. Schutte converted one of the two shots.

The Mounties came to play. Their outside shooting was remarkable. They bagged seven three-pointers. It was their failure to match Plymouth's output in two-point goals — Plymouth shot 22 of them, the Mounties only 12 — that cost them so much.

The Big Red settled for 10 conversions of 20 free throws, an unsatisfactory result, especially on the home court. The Mounties failed with seven of 18 charity tosses.

Council takes no action on contract

Barber admitted he had not realized how important is "freedom of choice" in the village. Welker said the council needs to listen to input from the citizens of the village.

Shaskey's representative said special consideration would be given under his contract for those who live on fixed incomes and have little trash.

The discussion ended with Welker saying there were many details to work out.

Both Welker and Mrs. Paddock said they were in favor of it at first, then too many complications arose.

The public hearing to vacate a number of alleys in the Portner and Woodland streets attracted not a property owner, so that legislation will be prepared to do so with easements for village utilities.

The petition to vacate the alleys was signed by James R. Lewis, 54 Portner street; David A. Howard, 60 Portner street; E. Adrian Cole, 50 Portner street; Robert F. Metcalf, 66 Woodland street; Charles Hockenberry, 74 Woodland street; Mrs. Thomas DeWitt, 69 Woodland street; First National Bank of Shelby by James C. Davis, 68 Portner street, and Mrs. Robert I. Bachrach, East Main street.

James E. Root, village administrator, told the council the utility department needs a new pick-up truck. If one is purchased, the present one can be turned over for the use of Greenlawn cemetery.

The council has received a letter from Peggy Helms, a Plymouth High school pupil, who lives at 46 Sandusky street. Miss Helms complained about the poor condition of sidewalks in that street which are heavily travelled by school pupils and grocery shoppers.

Although no action was taken, the council was in agreement that a program will be worked out as was done in the past, with the property owner paying for the materials and the village supplying the labor.

Purchase of a computer for the Clerk-treasurer's office passed on its first reading. It will cost about $14,000. Welker voted no on the suspension of the rules, which would allow it to be passed with three readings in one meeting.

Both Barber and Taubee said it is "a little behind the times".

GOP anoints foe of Pease; Dunlap to quit

The anointed GOP challenger o Donald J. Pease (D-Oberlin), 13th district representative to the Congress, is Steve Hambley, 33, a part-time instructor in Lorain County Community college who is working toward a Ph D in history in the University of Akron.

Hambley lives in Brunswick, Medina county.

He attended Cuyahoga Community college for six years, off and on, and took a baccalaureate degree in general studies from Kent State university in 1979. He received the master's degree in American history from the University of Akron in 1985. He has a teaching assistantship at Akron.

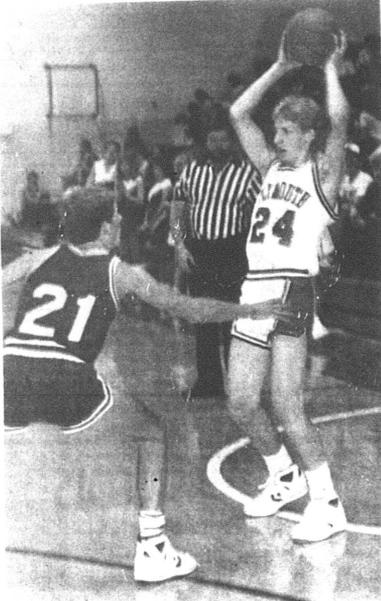

Huron County Sheriff Thomas Dunlap, like Daniel, can read the handwriting on the wall. He won't seek reelection.

Dunlap has served one term. He defeated Lloyd Smith, the hand-picked candidate of former Sheriff John Borgia, four years ago.

Dunlap has befuddled himself with at least two actions that were widely regarded as serious mistakes. He dismissed from his staff a female cook and then said the termination was because she was a thief. She took him to court and he lost. He and the county were required to pay the woman $23,999.

And lately it was discovered that Dunlap, an officer in the janitorial service business, is devoting 30 or more hours a week to work in Lucas county, time that some electors think ought better to be passed in the sheriff's office.

Dunlap points out that Ohio law requires the sheriff in counties of Huron's size to report to his office only once every 90 days.

Combs aims shot

A three point play by Dane Burke at 49 of the final period broke a tie at 56 and allowed Western Reserve to record a 59 to 56 victory over Plymouth in Firelands conference play.

The Big Red had clawed from behind to erase a lead of four points to tie it at 56.

The Roughriders' outshot Plymouth from the field and that was the difference. Because the number of errors on offense was about the same: 22 for Western Reserve, 24 for Plymouth. And the number of rebounds for each team differed by just one, 27 for the 'Riders, 26 for the Big Red.

The visitors shot well enough to win a dozen games: 22 of 49, just under 45 per cent. But it wasn't enough to match the Blue and White's 26 of 49, or 53 per cent.

At the free throw line, Plymouth missed four of 12, the 'Riders eight of 13.

Todd Wilson led the Big Red scoring with 19 points, six of them on two shots from beyond the stripe. Ron Stephens, who was held out for much of the third period because he was in foul trouble, notched 10.

The 'Riders had three in double figures. In addition to Burke, who scored 23 points, they included Chad Fairchild and Todd Eungard, each of whom collected 12.

Plymouth led by two after eight minutes but could not stand the pace in the second period, when Western Reserve bagged 17 while holding Plymouth to nine. The Big Red put four more points on the third period scoreboard than did the 'Riders and when the final quarter began, the difference was just two at 42 to 40.

Plymouth still needs a point guard who can score.

Had such a player been in charge, the number of mistakes on offense, an officer in the janitorial service business, is devoting 30 or more hours a week to work in Lucas county, time that some electors think ought better to be passed in the sheriff's office.

Dunlap points out that Ohio law requires the sheriff in counties of Huron's size to report to his office only once every 90 days.

The second weakness is in rebounding. Both offensively and defensively, Plymouth lost countless opportunities because it was out of position on the offense. Boards and did not screen out defensively.

There were seven shots from under six feet range in the paint that didn't go down. The shot selection was not of the calibre required of a first place team.

Beebe star in defeat of reserves

He's the shortest player on the squad

And although he's an 11th grader, he doesn't start.

He played Friday like he wants to change that.

Brian Beebe was a demon on defense and a leader of the Red offense with eight points. Stacy Hall scored 13, but Plymouth went down after one overtime, 46 to 43.
