Irish sweet bread and Fast Food chicks click!

Once a year the great state of Missouri makes headlines across the nation.

That will be for St. Patrick's day. It has a small community tucked away in the very northeast corner of the state which frolics like mad on that day.

It is named St. Patrick, the only community in the whole wide world named for the wonderful saint.

As far as it is known, the community was founded somewhere about 1830, and one of its first residents was a niece of Daniel Boone. The others were Irish Catholics who had come from Maryland to Kentucky then to what has become Missouri. I do not know what the Boones were, but at least one got there, and the settlement was purely Roman Catholic.

The hamlet was called various names through the years, including Santa Fe Mission, because it was on one of the trails. Then it was called Wyacondia Mission, because it was close to a river that name. Later it was called St. Marysville. It was in 1876 the hamlet, which was really only a parish then, began to call itself St. Patrick and somewhere along the line got itself a postoffice.

In 1936 the local postmaster and parish priest got together and decided they had something good for stamp collectors. They then decided a cancel mark which has become a gem. It is a shamrock, natch, rounded in shape, with this lettering around it, "Saint Patrick, Mo., The Only One in the World". Guess what color ink they use?

They are using all this for a wonderful cause and have built a shrine to St. Pat., which is our country's official shrine to him and all the Irish in the land.

SO WHILE THE HAPPY people in St. Patrick's are happily helping collectors, you can happily do something for your family. There is still time today to do it. Bake up some Irish Sweet Bread. This will make two loaves so you can give one to a neighbor.

Sift three cups of flour with one and a half teaspoons of salt and three-fourths of a teaspoon of baking soda.

In another bowl cream a half cup of shortening, a fourth of a cup each of sugar and molasses. Then mix in an egg.

Stir the two mixtures together alternately with a cup and a half of buttermilk.

Then mix in a cup and a half each of raisins and currants and a fourth of a cup of chopped citron or lemon rind.

Pour into two regular size loaf pans and bake in a slow oven at 325 degrees for almost an hour and a half.

This is really good enough to eat any other day of the year and is great with a little butter or just bare for your coffee and tea drinking friends who happily drop in when you are not expecting them.

And if your guests are enjoying themselves so much and it doesn't look as though they would go home for dinner, ask them to stay.

This may be a shady, underhanded way to come up with something absolutely delicious. It is for chicken curry, the easy way.

It sure beats changing a chicken around the backyard, then having to defeather it, cook it for a couple of hours, then start to put the curry all together.

I discovered this last week when I stopped for something to eat on the way home from the hospital in one of those fast food places I had heard so much about.

Their fast food was darn good, but then when it is 7:30 p.m. and you have not eaten all day, any fast food would be tasty.

This chicken place has it. So I got to thinking on the way home that their creamed chicken could be gormeted up a little.

The next day I stopped and asked for an order without the biscuit which threw them for a loop. They apparently had never heard of any other way to eat the stuff.

I won. When I got it home, I sauteed a little chopped onion and apple with curry powder, and mixed it in the chicken mixture.

Then I heated it in a double boiler, but a microwave will work like a dream.

You can go to the butcher making rice for it, but it is easier to open a can of Chinese noodles. With the noodles it is not necessary to have all the accessories which should go on curry, like raisins, chutney, peanuts and hardboiled eggs.

The Maltese was probably the world's first lap dog. Ladies in Greek and Roman noble families were fond of these little dogs.

Although the original playing cards came from 10th century AD China, the earliest to bear the four suits of the modern pack reputedly date from France in 1440 AD.

Mrs. Robert Berberick is celebrating twenty-five years with R. D. Donnelley and Sons Company. She began her career Dec. 12, 1961 as a Temporary Bundry Feeder. No weekend Rest for fire fighters

Plymouth fire fighters had a busy weekend.

Saturday's balmy weather brought everyone out — apparently with matches.

The first grass fire was at 11:30 a.m. at the Chase residence in route 61 north, the second, at 1:30 p.m., was the field of the Finegan residence in Springmill road.

The third and fourth calls at 2:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. involved the same area near the Wilford Postema home in route 598.

Sunday at 5:30 p.m. the department was called to stand by at Terra International Inc., 176 Beelman street, where tanks of chemicals were leaking.

A nearby resident called the Plymouth police, and the call was answered by the Richland county sheriff's office on the 800 number and a cruiser was dispatched immediately along with the Plymouth cruiser.

As a safety factor, all residents were asked to leave the area for a short period of time.

New Washington Bows to Big Red in sectional

They were the underdogs. All the bets were on Buckeye Central.

But the Big Reds held the lead right down the line.

They simply showed they had it. The only time the game became really close, within four points, was in the fourth quarter, Buckeye Central scored 21 to Plymouth's 19.

At that point everyone was playing for blood.

Big Reds solved it all when Ron Stephens made a three point play and Mike Lasch successfully made two free throws.

Steve Hall led with 25 points. Stephens was responsible for 12 points, Jason Robinson for 11 and Lasch for 10.

And not to be left out, Terry Wilson's point is part of the 59-50 score for the Big Reds.

Only two Buckeye Central players scored in double figures. Heath made 21 and McCracken 10.

When it was all over, Coach Dave Dunn was asked what he thought about it all.

He said, "I felt that defensively we played extremely well with the exception of a short stretch in the fourth quarter. Our defensive effort was the difference.

Offensively we struggled early in the game and throughout most of the first half. However, we came out in the third quarter and were able to execute much more effectively and build a considerable lead.

Our offensive balance showed as we posted four out of our five starters in double figures. Steve Hall again led the attack with 25."

Rx for Flu or Chicken Pox: Kindness
Be good to yourself when you've got the flu or chicken pox. Take it easy. Get plenty of rest. Viral illnesses such as these are usually self-limiting. Time will cure them.
Check with your doctor about using medications to treat flu or chicken pox. For children - including teenagers - medications such as aspirin and aspirin-containing products may not be a good idea. A rare but dangerous condition called Reye syndrome may develop in young people just when they appear to be recovering. Studies suggest a link between the development of Reye and the use of aspirin to treat the flu or chicken pox.
So, treat yourself right when you've got the flu.
