

What's direction of our schools with money woes?

The discussions conducted yesterday, in public, and by the board previously, obviously privately, relating to how the school district shall deal with a serious shortfall in revenues, this year, next year, and the year after, ought to command the careful notice of everyone.

To seek public support of a fresh tax, of perhaps six mills, seems to be the obvious course to take.

Unfortunately, the board has all but prejudiced any chance of approval of such measure by disclosing that an alternative is to close Plymouth Elementary school. There will be some benighted souls in Shiloh, Cass townships and Bloominggrove township who will, for good reason, support such a tax. But it will take several clouts over our head with a stout timber to convince us that voters in the Shiloh area will cast ballots to support retention of a school building in Plymouth that is limited in enrollment to pupils who live within shouting distance, or very nearly so, of that school.

We have already seen how well a threat to require prospective participants in athletics and band to pay enormous fees for the privilege goes over with the electorate. That levies earlier turned down eventually carried in the face of such threats (they weren't called that, the superintendents of the districts concerned vehemently denied they were threats, but a blind man could see what they were) does not change the fact that a number of electors were enraged by such conduct. To what extent they may have been alienated from the necessary support by them of forward-looking school policies is anyone's guess; only a fool would say there was no alienation.

Our schools have made some progress, progress of a desirable sort, progress that would be suitable to boast about save that it has occurred 25, 30, 35 - perhaps even 50 years after it became clear that it was needed. The accreditation of the high school by the prestigious North Central Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges is a case in point. Only God knows - and there is reasonable doubt that even He can recall - how many of our graduates were denied admission to some colleges and universities without a stiff entrance examination because the school from which they were graduated was not accredited.

The board seated on Jan. 11 has its work cut out for it. Its credibility is in some question. It deals with nuts and bolts, not the energy that drives the machine nor the kind of work assigned to the machine or the results expected of it.

It took the generous gift of a former pupil here, in the amount of $100,000, sequestered from any control by the board, to generate any substantial step forward in the field of academics. And there is some wonder whether the assistance committed to four graduates each year is sufficiently significant as to enable a deserving candidate to pursue his education.

Our point is this: that fresh money may be needed is probably true. How much is another question. What to do until fresh money is in hand needs to be discussed with electors, publicly, promptly, in intricate detail, and when a decision is taken, the board - not any of its employees, but the board, each and every one of the five men who serve on it at our pleasure - needs to get out to convince the whole electorate of the importance and desirability of approval of the plan.

And if, indeed, when push comes to shove, it is prudent to seek a more drastic solution, such as merger with another district, whether this may occur next year or five or 10 years from now, it is better, sooner than later, that our options should be investigated and the preferences of the patrons of the district be solicited to determine which way, when it is clear there is no other way out, to jump.

And maybe, just maybe, it is wise for us to make that jump while and when we have some bargaining power.

If the electorate chooses not to shoulder increased taxation, where do we go from there?

Hamman arrested for arson in car fire

The 18-year-old Plymouth youth, grandson of its 30-year police chief Robert L. Meiser, who retired in 1978 and died of cancer shortly after, was charged with arson Thursday, a day before he was to be sentenced by Judge James Henson in Richland county common pleas court after pleading no contest to a burglary charge.

Robert L. Hamman, 51 Portner street, was lodged in Shelby jail overnight. He was taken for sentencing Friday at 8:30 a.m. and returned to Shelby Municipal court thereafter for a bond hearing on the arson charge, in which it is alleged that on Nov. 19 last he set fire to his 1989 Pontiac Trans Am in a field off Miller road. He later reported the vehicle had been stolen, a claim local police disbelieved.

It was speculated that his motive for doing so was to conceal from his father, Terrence Hamman, co-signer of the note with which purchase was funded, that the vehicle was earlier heavily damaged while being operated recklessly.

Judge Henson put off sentencing of Hamman because he had just learned of the accused's liability for the arson charge in Richland county and another felony charge in Clark county.

Judge Jon Schaefer, Shelby Municipal court, set bond at $2,500.

On Thursday Patrolman Dane Howard served Hamman with a summons returnable in mayor's court for consumption of beer while under legal age to do so.

Pugh sued by sister

A prominent resident of Plymouth township is defendant in an action laid in Richland county courthouse by his sister that alleges he refused to pay her for caring for their mother before she died.

Roger E. Pugh is said to owe $50,000 to his sister, Mary Frances Pugh, Shelby, for the care of their mother, Margaret R. Pugh, who died Nov. 24, 1985, leaving an estate valued at $160,221, including a $77,500 farm in London West road, with Roger Pugh as executor of her will.

Miss Pugh claims her brother offered to settle for $12,144.

Capelle dismissed as CEO by PLI, Inc.; Adams named to job

Directors of Plymouth Local motive International, Inc., in session Jan. 11 fired Paul W. Capelle, former city manager of Willard, whom they engaged as president and chief executive officer on June 1 at $42,500 a year with opportunity to qualify for bonuses amounting to $20,000 the first year.

They did not give a reason. Directors are Miles W. Christian, president of the board; John Fricks, until a few days ago president of Empire-Detroit Steel Co., Mansfield; Jack Hansen, resident manager, R.E. Donnelly & Sons Co., Willard; and David Adams, Medina, former chief finance officer of Ohio Brass Co., Mansfield, in which he engaged the employee buyout that converted it to Mansfield Ferrous Metals Co., a business that went belly up last year because it failed to reckon carefully its costs of materials, all "outside" directors, and Eldon Burkett, Ervin Howard, Larry Bailey and Roy Collins, "inside" directors.

It is understood Christian was not present for the meeting. "It should have come as no surprise to Capelle," one director, who insisted on anonymity, told The Advertiser, "He was warned there was some dissatisfaction some time ago."

Nature of that warning was not disclosed. Speculation among employees who live here, largely fueled by some who claim to know the "inside" directors well and to have discussed privately with them the complaints against Capelle, is that dissatisfaction derives, in part, from Capelle's allegedly harsh manner of dealing with subordinates - "he thinks he's still a major in the goddam Marine Corps" - and from engaging some kin in a white collar assignment despite the advice of some directors not to do so. Others think that Capelle's recent junket to the Far East, ostensibly to seek customers for the plant that now hires about 125, did "not wash well" - he took his wife along and well - he took his wife along and they went to Tokyo to see their son - and that Capelle's methods of organizing the manufacturing process frustrated skilled employees to the point of extreme dissatisfaction.

Directors elected Adams as CEO. The employees, then members of Local 2161, UAW, voted in May of 1987 to buy the business from Banner International, Inc. for $5.3 million. Each employee was to put up about $4,500 and the remainder was financed by a state grant, by a loan by Banner, by a county grant and by a large advance by a commercial bank, Huntville National.

During the fall of 1987 and throughout the Yuletide season, Capelle was at pains to point out the company "has been in the black every month since I came here (June 1)". Each employee who invested in the buyout received a $1,000 Christmas bonus, a largesse that cost the company at least $100,000.

Capelle became city manager at Willard Aug. 15, 1974 and resigned as of May 1, 1987. He acquired a broad reputation for having acquired enormous assistance to the City of Blossoms in the form of federal grants, a technique at which he is, apparently, gifted.

Adams has been in the parlance of industry, "around the block". He is an executive of experience. A 1957 alumnus of Kent State University, having grown up in Canton, the 52-year-old Adams specialized in industrial management. He was employed by Corning Glass Works, Inc. for 11 years as industrial engineer and in industrial relations. He left Corning to avoid transfer outside of the parent of a son, now 29, who requires sophisticated treatment.

He joined Feresco, Inc., Cleveland, a metallurgical chemical firm, as vice-president of human resources and corporate administration. He resigned to form his own consulting company, a business he sold during the 1970s. Then he joined Ohio Brass Co., Mansfield, in industrial relations during 1981. In June, 1986, he organized Plum Creek consulting firm. Having assisted in the employee buyout of Ohio Brass Co. he was invited to assist in the buyout here. His expertise and abilities impressed the negotiators, who invited him to become a director.

Mr. Adams resides in Sharon township, near Medina. Mrs. Adams teaches fourth grade in Medina schools. Their son is 29, their daughter 24.

Will Young seek judgeship? - Sawyer, Carabin, Olson seeking reelection

Rep. Frank Sawyer (D-Mansfield) and Rep. Richard Rench (R-Milan) will seek reelection to the Ohio House of Representatives. Rench seeks a fourth term.

Fourth term Thomas Carabin (R-Norwalk) will seek reelection for a fourth term as Huron county commissioner. Gene Shepherd (R-New London) and Karen Wilhelm (R-North Fairfield) have opted to seek election to the seat to be vacated by Roy Palm (R-North Fairfield).

William Conway (D-Norwalk), a retired teacher and school administrator, will seek his party's nomination to obtain Palm's seat.

Two Democrats and a Republican have entered the primary contest for commissioner in Huron county. Democrats are Patri Saunders, Norwalk, a railroad employee, and Gordon Beck, Norwalk. Saunders for the seat to be vacated by Palm, Beck for both seats, including that to be vacated by Carabin.

Richard P. Houck, an eight year trustee of Sherman township will be a Republican candidate for Huron county commissioner for the term currently being held by Roy Palm.

He is involved in the development of the Huron River Joint Fire district, which consists of three townships and the Village of Monroeville and is chairman of that board.

Houck is vice-president of the Huron County Township Trustee association. He has served eight years in the Ohio National Guard and is a member of BPOEIKS and the Farm Bureau.

Houck, involved in agri-business all his life, is 50, and resides at 4506

Sherman-Norwich road, Willard, with his wife of 30 years, the former Joyce Murphy, and their two children, a daughter, Valerie, 20, attending the Tiffin Academy of Hair Design, and a son, Shawn, 18, who attends Ohio State University.

RICHARD P. HOUCK

Formerly Huron county prosecutor of the common pleas, Richard B. Hauser, 40 (D-Norwalk), a lawyer who practices in Willard, will seek his party's nomination to that office. He previously served two terms until he was ousted by Michael Fegen (R-Norwalk), now a candidate to be judge of the court of common pleas.

Whether Henry Young (R-Norwalk), a former mayor of Magnolia City, will contest his party's nomination for the judgeship to which Fegen aspires, the office to be vacated May 14, 1989, by Robert

W. Smith (D-Bellevue), is unsettled. Some who claim to know him said Young may file a nominating petition as an independent candidate, which would obviate a primary fight, or even register as a Democrat to avoid the expense and campaigning incident to a primary contest.

Phillip M. White (R-Norwalk), defeated by John Ridge (D-Norwalk) for the municipal court judgeship on Nov. by less than 300 votes, claims strong support in New London, where he was born, Willard and south county precincts. He plans to build on this to win election as common pleas judge. He will run for reelection in the primary. White was assistant prosecutor for three years, county court judge for 11 years and acting municipal court judge for 1. years.

Incumbent Lawrence Heid, D-Norwalk, will seek reelection to the $46,500-a-year county engineer post. Timothy Riley, R-Norwalk, a previous candidate, would oppose him.

Connie Hipp, incumbent Democrat, who succeeded Elminger in March a year ago, seeks election. Loretta Meecham, R-Bellevue, is also running.

Chicken soup? Good for colds!

By AUNT LIZ
For weeks I have been feeling downright guilty. It has to do with a new airline ruling about carry-on things. Granted we have not carried on a computer, mostly because we simply do not own one, nor have we carried clothing just in case luggage got lost. What we have done, though, is about as bad. It's cookies and jelly. For years I climbed on planes clutching plastic bags that weigh about 20 pounds apiece. This year we also went so equipped, the cookie tins, jelly and a vacuum roaster that eliminated the little fruit cakes I planned to take.

We're not the only ones. I realized while waiting for our luggage to appear that airplanes at Dulles that most people carried more than what they picked up when the suitcases appeared.

The airlines also have the security check problem, and I can see how easy it can be to smuggle something dangerous aboard. Not once in years have we been asked if we were carrying and it could have been 10 bombs. There must be a way to camouflage them somehow.

Just once did any one ask me what was in my little shopping bags. I think it was in Dallas, where we had to change planes. When I told the gal that it was jelly and moonshine, she gave me a look that said, "I am sorry I asked," and I don't think she believed me. It wasn't.

The jelly was homemade and was the other stuff, right out of Kentucky, which a kind friend brought to us on one of his jaunts. The stuff was absolutely undrinkable (Ed. Note: Ha!) and made great little presents for unsuspecting people.

Still there are some things that understandably should be carried by hand. No one wants to take the chance of an antique vase that you want to give to someone being lost in your luggage or even in the mail system. Such things I refuse to trust with anyone but myself.

Maybe to solve the problem, the airlines should put in a law about what grandmothers are allowed to carry on, since we seem to be the worst offenders. Why do we think our kinds can't find food where they live?

Once our daughter lived in fear of my hauling a fresh turkey to North Carolina and spent weeks telling me that they were turkey down there. But I have a friend who didn't believe that Long Island had them, and she always took one along with her homemade vegetable soup.

And speaking of soup, I think Mr. Campbell and I know every shortcut to tasty ones, but he has not really come up with a really substantial chicken broth. This has been chicken soup season at our house when we came down with colds, and someone told me it was the best cure. Just threw in some chicken pieces with some celery and

Churches elect

Kirby Nashit, Theodora A. Ross and Mrs. Wallace H. Redden were elected Sunday to the council of First Evangelical Lutheran church.

No action by council in re: trash

Another month and another meeting and the village council still has not taken any action of concluding a contract for an all-village trash hauler.

Councilman John Fazzini told the crowded council room Jan. 12 the service committee which he heads has not yet met to study the issue thoroughly.

An opposition apparently has sought legal advice as to how it can stop the village from imposing the trash pick-up.

Two of the group opposing the situation, Mrs. Ernest Burton and Mrs. Wayne Robinson, said they want to be present when the committee meets, but no actual date was set by Fazzini.

When the discussion ended, C. Joseph Runkle offered the parting words: "We do not want to be charged for a service we do not want."

Later in the meeting, the owner of Nelson Sanitation Service, Ashland, Neil Nelson, appeared to ask what progress the village has made. He was one of the bidders, but not the low one.

He was asked if his bid was based on any particular number of pickups by Councilman H. Led-Welker.

Nelson said his bid was based on the number he was given of the village utility accounts, which is about 700.

Welker asked if his bid would be the same if there were a number of exemption, lowering the number of pickups. He indicated that could change his bid.

Announcement for the vacating of alley ways in the Woodland-Portner street area was passed on its second reading.

The request of Plymouth, Inc. to vacate a street bordering the company's property was passed with no opposition. It is another instance of a dedicated street being planned on maps of the village but never developed. The problem was discovered last summer by the company while the loose ends of the employees' takeover were finished.

Councilman E. Adrian Cole announced that Mr. Carl Haas is taking over the position of secretary to the fire department.

Annual appropriation ordinance was completed. James C. Root, village administrator, said the funds are in good order, but that the water fund is "very tight."

Richard P. Wolfe, 2nd village solicitor, told the council the ordinance will be Feb. 5 in the district court of appeal concerning the Plymouth-Willard water problem. He said the decision could take several months.

Spear scions succumb; ancestor pioneer here

Grandson of the late Solomon Spear, a pioneer among Jewish families in Plymouth and a business and commercial leader here for three generations before his death, Nathaniel R. Spear, Jr., 92, a World War I Army sergeant, a Yale university graduate and benefactor of its museum, to which he contributed an important collection of bells dating from pre-Christian times, an incubator of note and a veteran merchant and financier, died in New York, N.Y., Jan. 5.

Mr. Spear was an infrequent visitor to Plymouth in his later years, although much of his childhood was passed here in the household of his grandparents in Mulberry street. His last visit to Plymouth was on the occasion of its centennial celebration in 1965. He had planned to come here to deliver the annual Memorial day address in May of 1982, but canceled his plans when he participated in a celebration in 1985. Fegen-Chupp spat erupts; tax delinquency collection

How serious is the spat between Huron County Prosecutor Michael Fegen and Treasurer Ardeth Chupp?

What are its elements? Fegen charged that real estate tax delinquencies in the county exceed $400,000.

He earlier complained to Fegen that his prosecuting tax delinquents whose names were supplied to him by her was reflecting adversely on her campaign for election as auditor, a campaign she narrowly lost to John Elminger, then recorder, Fegen says.

So he stopped prosecuting delinquents.

Mr. Chupp says her motive wasn't political at all. Rather, she assented, she wanted Fegen to send threatening letters to the delinquents to obtain payment, since court costs include a title search fee of $150.

Fegen demurred at this notion. "If he gets a letter from a taxing authority and don't pay, he would they pay on a letter from me?"

To this Mrs. Chupp pointed to a recent experience in Knox county, where she was president of the board produced about 50 per cent of $1,000 or more.

The prosecutor then wheeled his right about in action. There's no teeth in the law, he said, when the penalty for delayed payment is 10 per cent the first half, 10 per cent second half, six per cent in subsequent years in 1988.

The General Assembly has fixed the rate at 10 per cent for each delinquent year. Mrs. Chupp rejoined.

Red rally nips South Central, 32-27

Coach Ted Fox came back to the scene of his illustrious youth Thursday with thoughts of upset on his mind.
And until only 4:57 remained in the game with South Central, it appeared he would succeed.
The Trojans scored the first basket and romped off to a 12-point lead after eight minutes.
Plymouth cut it to nine by halftime. South Central outshot

Plymouth, made far fewer mistakes, outbounded the Big Red and made a nice transition game work.
After 16 minutes, the Trojans were 10 of 32 from the field with one success in two tries from the penalty strip. They had rebounded 18 shots and committed only five turnovers. By double teaming Kim Gibson, they kept the Plymouth Ace down to eight points, only two of four from the field.
It was a different story after the recess.
Plymouth forced the Trojans into seven mistakes and outscored the Trojans by four.
Going into the final eight minutes, Plymouth trailed by five points.
So the Big Red ran nine points to tie it with a field goal by Laura Paulo at 4:47 and went ahead on Amy Laser's two free throws at 4:05.
Before the Big Red gave up a point—the only one South Central was to score in the final period, Plymouth led at 30 to 26.
The Trojans had four opportunities to win it from the foul line before Donell Branham canned two free throws with 13 seconds left. But they could not convert the head end of some bonus awards.
Miss Gibson led all scorers with 11. Sheri Wagers bagged nine. Miss Paulo seven.
For the Trojans, Cindy Boone scored eight and Veronica Shepherd seven.
Plymouth converted nine of 47 shots at the basket and 14 of 21 free throws. It rebounded 25 shots and committed 20 errors of offense.
The Trojans hit on 12 of 47 shots from the field and three of 12 at the foul line, with 35 rebounds and 23 turnovers.

South Central used superior shooting, a more effective transition game and the first-up performance of John Wilken in the fourth period to obtain a 64 to 55 victory over Plymouth in Firelands conference competition at Greenwich Friday night.
Plymouth trailed almost throughout.
It did not get the usual performance from its bench. Only one substitute, Terry Wilson, managed to score at all. He contributed just two points.
Ron Stephens fouled out late in the game, having scored 17 points. It was as close as the sixth gallery in a cheap opera house when the fourth quarter began. Plymouth had clawed from behind to make it 42 to 41 in favor of South Central. Then its capable guard, Wilken, went to work. He threw in two field goals.
And after Terry Hall had countered with a bucket for Plymouth, Wilken went to the line after a foul by Jeff Bloomfield. He converted both shots. And he wasn't finished. With 51 seconds left, he shot another free throw.
But the damage had been done.
Plymouth was not able to recover. It played catch-up basketball until the final buzzer.
Although the Trojans committed 27 errors on offense, 10 of them unforged, they managed 35 rebounds, enough of them off their defensive boards to permit 27 points on transition play alone.
And, as was to be expected, they shot well on their own floor. The Trojans got off 52 shots and converted 25 of them, just under 50 per cent. They were accurate at the free throw line with 14 of 23 tries.
Plymouth got a splendid effort from Co-Capt. Lance Combs in his best performance of the season. He carried the Big Red early on and wound up with 10 points. Bloomfield, with one three pointer, a shot that came late in the game and did no more than reduce the deficit, scored 12.
Overall, the Big Red shot 52 times and succeeded with 21. At the foul line it missed nine of 21. It was charged with 22 turnovers.
South Central is a formidable team. It has no great size and not much speed. But it shoots well, under new coach Pat Durham who plays together and it does not panic.
Plymouth's first half shooting performance was expensive. It went four-for-18 in the first eight minutes and only four-for-11 in the second. In the third, it produced a minor miracle. Notoriously a poor third quarter team, the Big Red was seven-for-14 in that period and six-for-nine in the final one.

Girls withstand surge by Wildcats, win in conference

Plymouth girls withstood a furious rally by New London, made possible by the Big Red's poor play in the fourth period, and hung on for a 58 to 45 Firelands conference victory here Jan. 11.
At one time Plymouth led by 23 points.
What best the Wildcats was their failures at the foul line: they didn't go there often enough, and when they did, they shot less than 50 per cent accuracy. As it was, Plymouth missed enough free throws to win a dozen games. Its record was only 20 of 44.
Each team scored 19 field goals. New London had two three-pointers.
Kim Gibson led all scorers with 23 points, most of them in the first half, when Plymouth capitalized on 18 errors on offense by the Wildcats.
Donell Branham contributed 13 to the Big Red's game.
For the victors, Mel Nestor bagged 15, all on field goals, one from far out and six of the conventional variety.
The home club played well for the first half, not so well in the third period, although it outscored the Wildcats by six, and absolutely atrociously in the final eight minutes, when it was outplayed, outshot and outscored, by six.

Trojans reserves prevailed easily, 59 to 41.
Brent Wagers scored 18 for Plymouth, which was outshot from the field, 24 to 15. Each team canned 10 free throws.
To the seasoned observer, the key to the game was poor rebounding by Plymouth off its offensive boards. Its players did not position themselves well for this important aspect of the game. The pity is they have not read the significant manual on the geometrics of rebounding by the celebrated Prof. Harold E. Damp, now as always a Shiloh resident.
Brian Beebe demonstrated once again that he is a great ball handler. He has fast hands — he made five steals — good to excellent speed and is a better than fair shot when he gets the opportunity. He has the indefinable something that makes of the small player a very good one, such as Jimmy Hamman of 25 years ago was. He is Mr. Gets-the-Job-Done.
Perhaps it is time to afford him a shot at playing guard on the big team.

USAGE SENSITIVE SERVICE

The Company is proposing an introduction of optional Usage Sensitive Service (USS) to one-party customers in forty-one additional exchanges. Also, the Company proposes an increase in the existing USS access and USS usage rates. The usage rates are proposed to be increased between 35.0% and 40.0%. The proposed Residence Lifeline rates are 57.4% of the proposed flat local service rate and usage sensitive service access rate (42.6% discount). Upon FCC approval, the effective discount for residence lifeline customers will be approximately 50%.

SERVICING CHARGES

The Company is proposing to increase its servicing charges as follows for handling customer service orders.

making premise visits and completing various functions upon the customer's premises, upon a customer's request. The Company is also proposing to replace the current Central Office Line Connection Charge, Initial and Subsequent, with a Central Office Charge and an Outside Plant Charge to more appropriately reflect the work functions performed.

MISCELLANEOUS SERVICES

Increases in rates and charges are proposed for some miscellaneous services, namely:

- Foreign Central Office Service
- Directory Listings
- Directory Assistance Service
- Private Line Services
- Off Premises Extension Line Services

Because the Commission has authorized the detouring of certain billing and collection services, the Company also proposes to increase its proposed basic exchange rates by approximately 1.5%.

The prayer of the application requests the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio to do the following:

- Find that the Company's present rates and charges and the regulations and practices affecting the same are unjust, unreasonable and insufficient to yield reasonable compensation for the services rendered;
- Find that the rates and charges and regulations and practices proposed are just and reasonable and will provide no more than a fair and reasonable rate of return on the value of the Company's property actually used and useful for the convenience of the public;
- Approve the filing of the proposed schedule sheets contained in Schedule E-1 of the application, modified to reflect such revisions thereof as may become effective, pursuant to orders of the Commission, during the interim between the filing of the application and the date upon which the schedule sheets become effective;
- Order that the proposed schedule sheets become effective forthwith;
- Approve the withdrawal of the present schedule sheets contained in Schedules E-2 of the application;
- Grant such other and further relief as the Company is reasonably entitled to in the premises.

Rose fired as head deputy

For conduct unbecoming to an administrative officer of the sheriff's department, Maj. James Rose, principal deputy to Huron County Sheriff Thomas Drennon, was fired Monday.

"It comes as no surprise to me," one source told The Advertiser Tuesday. "Last time I talked with Drennon he had mentioned Rose something awful, so I figured something was up."
