NEW YORK — The slightly international set was queued up in the boxing offices in Madison Square Garden, jackets off, left shirtsleeves rolled to the shoulder, getting scratched. The somewhat international set was planning an ocean cruise and needed vaccination certificates for re-entry at the Port of New York.

Bravely they stood their ground as the needle pricked each in his turn. On the morrow they would be at sea, striding the deck of a tugboat with rolling gait, bounding over the main from the Battery all the way out to Quarantine, where they would board the Italian Line's SS.Raffaello and come sailing back to 50th St. with Nino Benvenuti, middleweight champion of the world, who is returning from Trieste to defend his title in Shea Stadium Sept. 28 against Emile Griffith.

Excited about the impending voyage, they paid little won all his fights, with 18 heed to the poster advertising the Garden's next boxing show, though the features of both more pictures.
