

New York Yankee pitcher Mike Torrez lays down a bunt that helped put his team ahead of the Los Angeles Dodgers in the fourth inning last night. The Yankees went on to win the third game of the World Series, 5-3. Torrez pitched the complete game. It was a rare batting appearance for Yankees as pitchers don't bat in the American League. The Yankees have won two of the three series games.

Indicted In Scandal

Former Rep. Richard Hanna (D-Calif.) Friday was indicted on 40 criminal counts in connection with the Korean influence-buying scandal on Capitol Hill.

A federal grand jury charged Hanna with conspiracy, bribery, mail fraud and failing to register as an agent for a foreign government.

The indictment said Hanna helped millionaire Korean rice merchant Tongsun Park by introducing him to members of Congress and by suggesting which ones would be the best targets for the influence-buying scheme.

Good Reading Sunday

The Weekend Section takes a look at the Mansfield Symphony Orchestra this season and also examines the recycling of aluminum cans into something useful — money.

The Area Pages feature the courthouse being used in nearby counties and the new fire station and equipment that is the pride of the Bucyrus Fire Department.

The Family Pages will tell of an A-frame home in Bellville which is filled with art objects made by the owner.

Snowflakes To Make Scene

Don't be surprised to see a few snowflakes this weekend.

Forecasters are dishing up a chilly menu of showers, turning to snow and low temperatures around the freezing mark.

The prediction is in dreary contrast to yesterday's blue skies and 56-degree high.

Forecasters see a 40-per-cent chance for showers today with high reading in the low 50s. Showers are given an even chance for hanging on tonight when the mercury could dip as low as 30.

Tomorrow will be cloudy and cold with a chance of showers mixed with snow and a high reading of "near 40."

Bing Dies

Famed Crooner's Voice Stilled by Heart Attack

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Bing Crosby, whose crooning voice and relaxed humor entertained millions around the world for half a century, died of a heart attack Friday after a round of golf outside Madrid. He was 73.

Crosby, an avid golfer, collapsed after finishing a game at the La Moraleja club with three Spanish champions. He was taken to the Red Cross hospital where a spokesman said he was dead on arrival.

A few hours after learning of her husband's death, Kathryn Crosby told a news conference in Hillsborough, Calif. "I can't think of any better way for a golfer who sings for a living to finish the round."

(More stories on Pages 5 and 19)

She said his son Harry, 19, and the family's former butler, Alan Fisher, would fly to Spain to accompany Crosby's body back to Los Angeles, probably Monday.

U.S. consular officials said Crosby's body would be taken today to the U.S.

air base at Torrejon, outside Madrid. They said an American mortician was being flown in to prepare the remains for return to the United States.

Officials said an autopsy will be performed.

Mrs. Crosby said she talked by phone with one of the men who had played golf with Crosby. "He told me that Bing had a very good round. I'd like that to be said," she stated, smiling with tears in her eyes.

MAN OF MANY ROLES — Crooner Bing Crosby won his fame not only for his singing, but for the many movie roles he portrayed over the years. He's shown here in four of his most famous, including 1938's "Sing You Sinners;" as the loveable priest in 1945's "Going My Way;" in 1948's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court;" and in 1965's "Stagecoach." (AP Photos)

Police Have Some Anxious Moments

High-Speed Chases Carry Risk

By John Pallay

"I had one man who got home, drove into his driveway, around his house three and a half times, and then jumped out of his car and said he was going to sue me."

Richland County Sheriff's Deputy Maj. Gene Hart recounts this as one of the more interesting high-speed chases he has seen.

Mansfield Police Chief Matthew Benick remembers his cruiser going sideways through the Park East subway about 10 years ago while the officer who was driving braked in an attempt to make an unexpected turn onto a side street. "My throat is throating," he said.

The adrenalin, but officers have to remain cool enough to make good judgments, including the decision of when it might be wise to break off the chase.

State Highway Patrol Sgt. Richard Parilla said chases usually end with the other driver giving up or making a driving error which results in a minor accident. In some cases, patrol cruisers will box in the driver on three sides to prevent him from colliding with other motorists. The three cruisers slow down leaving the driver the choice of slowing down and stopping, running off the road or crashing into the cruisers.

Parilla said chases are always dangerous, and speeds of 30 or 40 miles an hour on some county roads can be just as risky as topping 100 miles an hour on Interstate Route 71. He said the Mansfield post of the patrol averages one or two high-speed chases a month, about half of them on the interstate. He said one recent chase went all the way from Richland County to Columbus.

Officers can be faced with some pretty tough decisions and the specific circumstances of each situation cannot be anticipated by written policy, according to Maj. Hart.

Officers commonly mention the situation of a school zone. If a car is speeding toward a school when children are likely to be out, should the officer stop and hope the fleeing motorist will slow

Compromise Wage Bill Supported

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — House and Senate committees Friday approved compromise legislation to raise the hourly minimum wage from $2.30 to $3.35 in four annual steps through 1981, starting with $2.65 next year.

About 4.6 million workers, roughly five per cent of the total work force, would have their pay increased in January, according to Labor Department estimates.

The conference result was a victory for organized labor, women's groups and other minimum wage supporters — a substantially more generous bill than the one initially adopted by the House last month.

"Those who are supporting the legislation can claim a major victory," said Jack Carlson, vice president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, one of the chief opponents. Labor lobbyists called it a "good bill."

Employer groups had lobbied aggressively to cut back the proposed post-1978 pay levels, to exempt more small businesses from coverage, to fend off a wage rate increase for workers who receive tips, and to provide a "subminimum" for teenagers. All this met with minimal success, in sharp contrast to the groups' earlier lobbying victories in Congress this year.

Carlson, in effect, conceded defeat on the wage bill. While urging rejection of the conference report, he said there is little likelihood of that.

Both houses are expected to give final approval to the legislation next week, according to its chief Democratic sponsors, Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. (N.J.) and Rep. Phillip Burton (Calif.).

DANGEROUS RUN — High-speed chases by police are dangerous, not only to the motorists and law enforcement officers involved, but to pedestrians and other drivers. Officers must remain cool enough to make critical judgments during the chases. (Photo by Charles E. Zirkle)

Air Guard Plans Open House

Mansfield residents get their first opportunity Sunday for a closeup look at the new operations of the Ohio Air National Guard located at Mansfield-Lahn Airport.

"This is the first chance we've had to catch our breath," says Lt. Col. George Arnold of the 179th Tactical Airlift Group. "We've just had our first major inspection, and now we feel it is time to let the community see our new planes."

The open house will run from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Richland Aviation, the fixed base operator at the airport, will offer airplane rides from the terminal during the time of the open house.

Among the activities scheduled by the guard are air drops of cargo onto airport land. Arnold said the maneuvers will be carried on as part of regular weekend exercises.

Many of the facilities have undergone a facelift since they were opened to the public last. The switch from jet fighters to C130B cargo planes necessitates a more than $2 million building program.

Besides the hangar, the facility of most interest to visitors should be the southern most building where the cargo to be dropped is packed. Arnold said guard personnel will be on hand to answer questions.

Films and slide shows about the guard will be shown during the open house.

Arnold said parking will be furnished in the guard's main lot.

There will be a new twist to the rides offered at the terminal. Jim Hackman, owner of Richland Aviation, said instead of charging by weight, the fee will be figured by height.

"It's Cessna's idea," Hackman said of the new system. "This will be the first time we have done it this way."

Persons wanting the 10-minute tour of Mansfield by air will pay 50 cents a foot. In the past it was two cents a pound.

The company had planned to offer air tours last weekend in conjunction with the drive-it-yourself tour, but had weather forced cancellation of the flights.

Persons wishing to view autumn foliage from above could take advantage of this second chance.
