Senior Class History

The time has come when another class must leave old P. H. S. forever. It is the Senior Class of 1923, a class duly respected, looked up to and loved by all—we hope.

Seven of our number started upon their career together, twelve years ago, in this same building. They are: Daisy Beberick, Ted Beberick, Paul Shepherd, May Barber, Helen Rowalt, Marie Feters and Mary Fate. Together we have stood, side by side, fighting our way ever toward our goal and ambitions. Climbing ever toward the top rung of the ladder which represents graduation—a little breathless, perhaps, from our long and tedious struggle, a little older, and perhaps made wiser by the knocks and jolts we have received from time to time, but nevertheless there, happy and satisfied.

Our school days, those never-to-be-forgotten days, are printed indelibly on our memories. Incidents that have occurred throughout our entire school life occasionally loom up vividly in our minds and cause us many pleasant recollections. Especially is the first day of school clearly remembered, and our first teacher, Miss Sibbitt; also how envious the rest of us used to be when she requested the "twins" to stand up for inspection on visitors' day. The joyous picnics on the front lawn were the chief anticipations of the first year.

Not until we reached the fifth grade did we discover that school was for something besides study, namely—fun. From that year until we entered High School, our poor teachers controlled us with the utmost difficulty.

Donald Akers and Flora Snider joined us in the seventh year, and Lela Rooks the following year. Genevieve Monnett was with us for a short time both in the eighth and Sophomore years and returned to graduate with us.

Our most trying year was the eighth. How we trembled in anticipation as our diplomas were being passed out, most of us rather dubious as to whether or not we should be promoted into High School. Here the first real change was reached,—change in subjects, change in routine, three rooms instead of one, four teachers instead of one. No wonder we were so bewildered, and no one took the trouble to explain anything to "Freshies."

We were informed that our choice lay between Latin, and "electives." Since none of us knew the meaning of "electives" and not one of us would have thought of asking, we became a "Latin" class. We were as shy and retiring as one could wish.

The next year, we stepped out, so to speak, in a much bolder manner, and tried, as we considered it our duty, to set an example of diligence, cleverness and efficiency before the new set of Freshmen. The Sophomore year proved a little more difficult for some of us, but we all finally struggled through.

The third year we came back more pompous than ever, but on account of the exceeding greenness of the Freshies, and three red haired teachers,, we were almost color-blinded for a few weeks. As our eyes grew more accustomed to the glare, we became more subdued, and one by one our brilliant teachers resigned until only one was left us. Directly following one of the resignations, our Mr. Davis descended upon us and straight-way proceeded to wake up a little spirit and enthusiasm, such as old P. H. S. had not experienced before. A new interest in athletics became prevalent, pep rallies numerous, literary societies and a glee club were organized.

As the school bell rang out the time for starting our twelfth year, we came back with a new feeling of dignity, and a little sadness at the realization that this was our last year. Mr. Davis became our superintendent and immediately reorganized the societies which he had started the year before, and in addition formed two debating teams.

Our spirit has reached the highest pitch. Interest in school does not lag, and everyone has an unusual incentive to study. We have but little remaining time to be together, then undoubtedly the class will be broken up and scattered. While a few have no definite plans other than remaining at home, the rest are planning to go farther and take up the higher branches of learning. Still wherever we may be, or whatever we may do, we who have started to school, grown up and graduated together, will never forget our comrades of the old days. Living these times over again in memory will afford many pleasant recollections after we have assumed our respective places in the world.

Senior Class Will

We, the Senior Class of 1923, being of sound mind and good memory, feel that our life in High School is approaching the end, and therefore deem it necessary to make and publish this, our last will and testament.

To the class of 1924, we bequeath the consideration of the janitor for the Seniors who may be a little late.

To the class of 1924, we also bequeath the privilege of receiving marks for talking between bells.

To the Sophomores, we bequeath our ability to eat candy and chew gum in school without being detected.

To the Freshmen, we bequeath our last and most cherished possession, the reputation of being a studious class.

I, May Barber, do bequeath my cultivated giggle to Claretta Sheely.

I, Helen Rowalt, do bequeath my dignity to Josephine Willett.

I, Flora Snider, do bequeath my sunny disposition to Lucille DeWitt.

I, Marie Fetters, do bequeath my absent-mindedness to Robert McIntire.

I, Mary Fate, do bequeath my hobby of asking questions to Glenn Hisey.

I, Donald Akers, do bequeath my rules of gentlemanly conduct to Charles Blosser.

I, Lela Rooks, do bequeath my healthy complexion to Eleanor Searles.

I, Genevieve Monnett, do bequeath my optimism to Caroline Bachrach.

I, Gertrude Foraker, do bequeath my choice vocabulary to Thornton Hoak.

I, Teddy Beberick, do bequeath my sarcasm to Isabel Ford.

I, Daisy Beberick, do bequeath my originality to Elizabeth Sykes.

I, Paul Shepherd, do bequeath my executive ability to Marion Kapenburgh.

We hereby appoint Miss Gooding the executioner of this, our last will and testament.

In witness whereof, we hereunto set our hand and seal in the aforesaid village of Plymouth, county of Richland, state of Ohio, on this twentieth day of May, A. D. nineteen hundred and twenty-three.

Signed: SENIOR CLASS OF 1923.

Organizations

Literary

The Clionian and Orythian literary societies of the High School came into existence the second semester of 1922. Since then they have continued to grow both in number of members and in their ability to present good programs.

Last year, the Clionian society won the first Annual Literary contest and was awarded the large silver loving cup, a gift of The Parent-Teachers Association.

The second Annual contest has not taken place at the time of this writing but the following persons have been chosen to represent their respective societies:

	Clionian	Orythian
Short Story:	Josephine Willett	Robert McIntire
Reading:	Jeanette McFarland	Mary Fate
Oration:	Helen Rowalt	Lucille Fenner
Debate:	Margaret Nimmons	Paul Shepherd
	Gertrude Beelman	Genevieve Monnett
	Teddy Beberick	Donald Akers

The Debate

The interest of the High School was aroused last October by the announcement that Ashland had challenged us to a debate, and that Mr. Davis wished to see all those interested after school.

Altho' this was an entirely new event for us, about sixteen stayed. After a month of hard study, during which material was collected from every available source, and papers were written and re-written, the time drew near to culminate all discussions.

The following were chosen by Mr. Davis for the two teams:

Affirmative—Isabel Ford, Paul Shepherd, Teddy Beberick

Alternate—Ruth Nimmons

Negative—Mary Fate, Genevieve Monnett, Donald Akers

Alternate—Beatrice Reed

The teams met on the night of December 14, 1922. The question at issue was:

Resolved, "That the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Law should be repealed."

The affirmative team was rewarded by a victory over Ashland. The negative team was less fortunate, for although the debate was close, the judges voted 2-1 in favor of Ashland.

Thus ended our first inter-scholastic debate.

Girls' Glee Club

The Girls Glee Club with a membership of twenty, was organized near the beginning of the school year by Mr. Davis.

The first public appearance of the club was during a Thanksgiving program given by the school at the Methodist church. Two selections were sung: "Voice of the Western Wind," and "Gleam, Gleam, O Silver Stream."

The most pretentious effort of the year was the presentation of the operetta, "In India," March 23, at Hamilton Hall. The chorus was composed of twenty-five girls dressed as Indian maidens of the village of Fishni. The principals of the cast were: Mary Fate, Meerah; Donna Hoak, Simla; Olga Aslakson, How-Now; Genevieve Monnett, Veerah; Gertrude Beelman, Hear-No-Evil; Margaret Nimmons, See-No-Evil; Helen Rowalt, Speak-No-Evil.

The story rendered in song goes thus: "Meerah, the most beautiful girl in the village of Fishni on the Ganges River in India, is chosen to become a temple dancing-girl.

The chosen one must be an orphan and Meerah believes herself to be one.

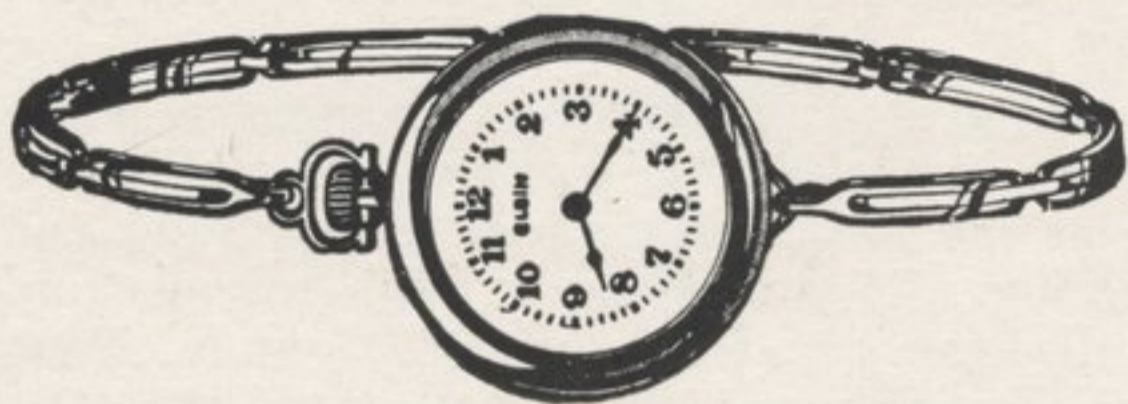

During the day, which is the festal day of Ahu, the flower-god, a beggar escapes from a passing procession of elephants bearing people from the hill countries. The beggar proves to be Meerah's mother and this renders Meerah ineligible.

There being no other orphan in the village except the village scold, How-Now, she is carried off to become a slave in the temple and the reunited mother and daughter join the maidens in celebrating the festal day of Ahu."

The excellent chorus work, the solos, the gay costumes, and garlands of bright flowers all contributed in producing the undeniable success of Plymouth High School's first operetta.

Boys' Basket Ball

One of the most successful seasons P. H. S. has had in recent years ended with the Maroon and White breaking even in ten games.

The first game was played at home against Tiro. Plymouth won a slow game by the score of 33-7. The following night they won from Crestline in a 23-16 game.

The first out-of-town game proved disastrous and New Washington won an easy game. The score was 24-11. The following week they journeyed to North Fairfield and received the short end of a 33-14 score.

A complete reversal of form enabled the Maroon and White to triumph 15-5 over Monroeville. The following week New Washington came over and won a 21-6 game.

The most spectacular game of the entire season occurred away from home when P. H. S. won a close game from Crestline. The game was anybody's until the gun shot with Plymouth leading 19-18.

The next two games were played at home, winning from Bucyrus seconds, 12-8, and losing to North Fairfield 18-15.

Over-confidence was largely responsible for losing the last game of the season 28-23 to Tiro.

A week later the Maroon and White travelled to Tiffin to participate in the division tournament. Thompson came out on the long end of a 12-3 score.

PAUL SHEPHERD

It can well be said that Captain "Shep" is one of the best forwards that has graced a Plymouth team for several years. He led in scoring.

NORMAN ASLAKSON

"Norm" is a hard, consistent fighter, who gives all he has. His work is rewarded by the captaincy of next year's team.

CHARLES BLOSSER

"Zeek" is the biggest man on the team and an excellent dribbler. His best game was played against Fairfield. He has another year to add to his laurels.

PAUL LOFLAND

Quiet and unassuming "Pete" was the source of many a winning rally throughout the season. He has three more years to play for P. H. S.

COY HOUGH

Although the smallest man on the team "Peanut" more than held his own against men twice his size. His cool-headedness and ability made him a valuable player.

DONALD BECKER

Possessing an uncanny eye for the basket, "Beck" drew more than one game out of the fire. One of his long, looping shots proved to be the winning point in the Crestline game. Three more years for "Beck."

LAWRENCE BECKER

"Pink" made his appearance late in the season but showed up to advantage. He will have three more years to show his prowess.

Girls' Basket Ball Team

Back Row—Sykes, Kappenberg (Capt.), Reed, Monnett
 Front Row—Fate, Carson, Snider, Sheely

The girl cagers of 1922-23 began the season with plenty of material and support under Coach Weaver.

However lack of practice showed its effect on the first two games played which were converted into defeats for Plymouth High.

Fate, Snider, and Monnett, three letter players will be gone next year. They will be missed.

There is an opportunity for a squad to be built up which will be an honor to Plymouth from the abundance of spirit and material now present in Plymouth High.

The first team was composed of: Forwards, Carson and Capt. Kappenburg; Guards, Fate, Snider, and Sheely; Center, Sykes and Monnett.

Over 100 T. B. U. graduates accepted positions in 1922. Several former graduates were transferred by the school department during the year to better positions.

A number of the young men employed by the above firms are receiving $1200, $1300, $1500 and as high as $1800 per annum. Eugene Huth received the highest salaried position in 1922, $150 per month.

Several of the young women are receiving $1000, $1100, $1200, $1400, and as high as $1500 per annum. Miss Inez Hoffman received the highest salary of the young women students in 1922, $125 per month.

The Commercial-Normal Training Course offered at T. B. U. has been approved by the State Department of Education of Ohio, and graduates from this course receive their State Provisional Certificate without an examination.

Prof. A. M. Reichard, C. P. A. (Certified Public Accountant) head of the Accounting Department, is the only teacher in Ohio who is a licensed C. P. A., on a full time teaching schedule, with the exception of Prof. Eckelberry of Ohio State University.

SANDUSKY BUSINESS COLLEGE GRADUATES SUCCEED

The Sandusky Business College has always been a supporter of thoroughness and completeness in whatever vocation one may select. Every course outlined in its literature is with a view to preparation for the rigid requirements of the course it advocates.

It has always discouraged short, make-shift courses of training because the average pupil will attend a business college but once in life time and his success or failure therefore reflects on the school or class of schools which he attended. It avoids fads and alluring titles designed to attract the patronage of the less conservative investigator. It features its Complete Business Training Course because it insures the possessor the greatest returns on the investment, and also because it is on that course only that the Degree of Honor Graduate in Business is conferred.

The college was accredited in 1912 by the National Association of Accredited Commercial Schools which means that its courses of study are the result of expert investigation carried on through the United States Bureau of Education in co-operation with several hundred capable teachers and business men. Because of this backing and the reputation of the school in Northern Ohio together with its free Employment Department, which is constantly in touch with the demands for its students, the graduate is assured a position.

Mr. W. O. Loudenslagel, president of the College, extends a cordial welcome to the members and friends of the Class of 1923 to visit the College at any time convenient.

Prosperous Year at the Oberlin Business College

The Oberlin Business College is passing through another prosperous year, the attendance being even larger than last year. This school has now come to occupy a great place in training young men and women for business and office positions and for teaching commercial branches in high schools and business colleges. It now has the highest standing given to any business college in Ohio, by the State School Department at Columbus. It was the first business college to be placed upon the Accredited List of Ohio Colleges, in 1915, by which authority it offers a two-year commercial teachers course which leads to the State Certificate. It is said to have more graduates holding State Certificates than all other similar schools combined. The Oberlin Business College is the school for high school graduates for it urges all young people to complete the full high school course before entering a business college and as a result it has an older and better educated class of students than any other school of the kind. This accounts for the great reputation which this school has gained. Any of your present seniors who think of entering a business college would do well to consider this school.

If
 Yours is a
 Quality Store
 You probably sell a quality
 line of stoves, a quality line of cutlery
 a quality line of aluminumware, and the Kyanize line of varnishes and enamels—a quality line for everyone in his home. The Quality Store in almost every town handles Green Seal Paints. If it does not handle this line of paints, it should, because Green Seal Paints belong in a Quality Store.
