SUPT. R. R. MILLER

DEAR READERS:

We are taking this space to sincerely pay a due tribute to one who holds our utmost respect and admiration; one who has so loyally served us in time of need, and helped us over so many of those uncertain steps throughout our high school careers; one who has displayed to us a more sincere friendship than any man could anticipate. A man who possesses high morals and integrity; a man of dignity and self-respect; a man who has enough self-confidence to stand up and meet his most serious problems squarely and capably.

We, the Seniors, therefore, pay this due tribute and extend our whole-hearted thanks to this worthy gentleman — Supt. R. R. Miller, our Senior Class Adviser.

WE take this opportunity to extend a word of praise to Mr. Sheeley, whose care-free smile and cheery "Good morning" helped to lighten our tasks of each day. Mr. Sheeley should be complimented upon the neatness of the building and its surroundings which display the result of his untiring efforts. He is prompt with every bell, and economical in his labor. These are both included in the requirements which a caretaker must meet. We are sure that every graduate and every on-coming graduate who has known or will know what the services of this man mean to a student, will hold a warm spot in his heart for Mr. Sheely and will join us in thanking him for his many kindnesses.

THE MAYFLOWER

When it was constructed some sixty years ago, this school building was acknowledged to be one of the finest in the state. But times have changed and another type of structure is now needed to house a modern high school. Yet it is the irony of fate, that when many of our Alumni congratulate us on our fine, new, modern high school building, their own fond memories of P. H. S. are associated with the old building. However, there is solace in the fact that, while it serves in its declining years to house the elementary grades, it yet stands as a memorial to the glories of days past but not forgotten.

Following are the names of those who served in the elementary building for the past school year:

- Miss Lucille Fenner, 4th, 5th, 6th grade work.
- Miss Florence Danner, 4th, 5th, 6th grade work.
- Miss Ruth McClellan, 3rd grade.
- Miss Mary Sheeley, 2nd grade.
- Miss Janice Squire, 1st grade.
- Mr. C. O. Cramer, Janitor.

Senior Play

Given in P. H. S. Auditorium, Friday Evening, May 92

This is a timely play portraying in a vivid manner the attitude of the various members of a typical prosperous American home when confronted by the financial reverses which came to so many as a result of the recent depression.

In the opening of the play, the various members of the Rand family are behaving as the pampered, spoiled people whom they are do behave under similar circumstances. When the crash comes and Mr. Rand's business fails, each member of the family behaves in his characteristic fashion. However, as they come to their senses, their better natures are aroused, the traditional family loyalty asserts itself, and all rally in their determination to make the best of things and to get a new start toward prosperity.

Junior-Senior Banquet

On Tuesday evening, May 2, the Juniors very capably entertained the Seniors and Faculty at Morse's Huron Valley Farm. A delicious seven o'clock dinner was served, followed by a short program. The Senior colors, green and gold, were interestingly carried out in the programs and decorations. Later in the evening a dance was sponsored in the High School auditorium, featuring Creel's orchestra.

Commencement

Commencement exercises for the class of 1933 were held in the High School auditorium on Monday, May 29. The Honorable Mahlon E. Wilson, a leading lawyer of Salt Lake City, delivered a most interesting address entitled "The Individual and the Public School." Mr. Wilson is a Plymouth High School alumnus of the class of '91.

Senior Class History

The class of 1933 must leave old P. H. S. forever. We must leave old friends and go out into the world to make the best of ourselves. Some of us will go to college, perhaps, and others to work.

In the fall of 1921, twenty-one small, confident children started upon their careers together in the old portable building. This was located behind the present Elementary building. The first year was a very exciting one for us. We were not accustomed to school life, but we learned quickly, and before we knew it, we were in the second grade. That year we were again in the portable, but when the third year rolled around, we had our room in the brick building, where we remained until our Freshman year.

Our grade teachers were as follows:

First—Stella Nye

Second—Elizabeth McElroy

Fourth—Mabel Robinson and Martha Fish

Fifth—Martha Fish and Grace Trimmer

Sixth—Grace Trimmer

Seventh—Lucille Fenner and J. B. Derr

Eighth—Lucille Fenner, T. S. Jenkins, and J. B. Derr.

Nine out of the twenty-one graduates of 1933 started together in the first grade. They are Mary Gebert, Ruth St. Clair, Ellen Anderson, Rose Guadaynino, Rex Teal, Correl Scott, Dick Webber, Donald Fetters, and John Henry Gaskill.

The remainder of our class joined us as follows: Louise Ross, in the latter part of the first year; Katherine Turson, in the second year; Arnold Munn, in the fourth year; Harold Miller, in the sixth year; Edith Preston, Thelma Foraker, Clifford DeLancy, and Thomas DeWitt, in our Freshman year; Donald Markley and Marshall Henry, in our Sophomore year, and Margaret Downend in our Junior year.

At the end of the eighth year, we received diplomas. We were the last class to receive them at the end of the eighth grade.

And then began our most important career. We were in high school that year (1929-1930), and very proud of the fact! Of course we were "green," but Mr. Derr, our class sponsor for that year, helped us get acquainted with high school ways. In March of that year, we moved into the new building. A number of us took part in the operetta, "College Days," which proved to be a great success. We closed the term with a class picnic at Percy Root's cottage north of New Haven.

In our Sophomore year, we were fortunate in having Mr. Wolf as our class sponsor. A number of our class members were on the basket ball team that year. The operetta "Patricia" was given that year, in which most of us took part. At the close of the year we held our class picnic on the farm of Dave Webber, Dick's father.

Our Junior year was begun with interest and much ambition. We elected Miss Camp as class adviser and, through her assistance, we were successful in all of our undertakings, the most important of which were the Junior class play, "Engaged by Wednesday," and the Junior Senior Banquet. Our class also took part in other school activities, such as basketball, track, and the minstrel, "The Order of the Boiled Owl."

The first Hallowe'en party in quite a few years was sponsored that year. At the end of that year we enjoyed our class picnic at the farm of A. C. Morse, a grandfather to Marshall Henry.

Our Senior year has been the most eventful one. Our class sponsor was Mr. Miller whose helpful guidance aided us in all of our activities throughout the term. This year, the Seniors helped initiate the Freshman class, which was the first ceremony of this kind in a number of years. The Student Council sponsored a Hallowe'en party and a Christmas, St. Valentine's, St. Patrick's dances were held. There were four Senior girls and four Senior boys on the two first teams of basketball this year. Both the Senior boys and girls teams won the Inter-class Tournament, for which they received bronze medals. At the close of the basketball season, the faculty very considerably sponsored an Achievement banquet for the basketball people. The operetta "Bits o' Blarney" was directed by Miss Camp and Mr. Murlin, to whom the Glee Clubs owe a word of praise for their untiring efforts. The publication of the "Mayflower" has been our most important work of this year. For our class play we chose "Shirt Sleeves," which proved to be most successful. Then came the Junior-Senior banquet, which was put over in a most interesting manner. The last events were Baccalaurate, Commencement, and the Alumni banquet.

Even though we regret that our school days have come to a close, we can look into the past with pride and respect for our teachers and school, and into the future with hope and ambition for achievements founded upon the pillars of our individual endeavors.

Supt. Miller, to Seniors: "I'm letting you out early today. Please go quietly so as not to waken the other classes.

THE MAYFLOWER

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

The wind was blowing fiercely during a dark night in November of the year 1944. Inside, I was comfortably dozing in the light of my glowing fire, idly dreaming and reminiscing the happy years I had spent in Plymouth High School.

Gradually the bright fire grew dimmer, and finally everything was engulfed in a sea of darkness. I gazed in wonder at a string of lights manning one of New York's most celebrated theatres, which, upon inquiry, I found was owned and operated by John Gaskill. Inside this theatre, the very interesting movie, "Her Hero" was being shown. I soon discovered that the leading male character was none other than the celebrated Correl Scott. I had no time to witness this much-talked-of movie, so hurried on down the street. Just as I turned a corner I heard the shrill sound of a fire engine, and, as it came closer, I observed Donald Markley as he raced by in his fire-chief's attire. As it advanced down the street I heard a loud grinding of brakes and the scream of a child pierced the air. By the morning paper I learned that the child was in Bellevue Hospital in a very critical condition. It stated that Rose Guadaynino was the trained nurse in charge of the case.

As I walked down the next block I beheld Marshall Henry enter the broadcasting station where, I learned, he announced the program for that hour.

But these buildings receded and in another section of the city Edith Preston was conducting a group of excited, chattering girls in the Home Economics department of a large high school. Across the street a sign arrested my attention. It read: "Madame Tursonne's Beauty Shoppe" and, surely enough, through the window I observed Katherine Turson waving a young lady's hair. Directly above, on the second floor I heard a feminine voice count "One, two, three." As I looked up, the door swung slowly open and I glimpsed Ruth St. Clair conducting her first period class in music. I continued on down the street and stopped in surprise as I read the sign "Miller and Munn, Attorneys at law," and from the steady stream of people entering the building, I surmised that these two men were very influential.

The scene was destined to change again and my attention was diverted to a gruff voice in a Federal Building which shouted "Order in the Court Room." I entered and there was Judge Thomas DeWitt staring haughtily at the nervous little stenographer, Thelma Foraker, who had been unjustly accused of aiding in a counterfeit action. But through the skillful procedures of her lawyer, Rex Teal, the evidence was found in her favor, and the case was dismissed.

As I resumed my wandering down the street I heard a loud cheering and yelling, so I hurried in the direction from which it came. It proved to be an exciting football game between the "Juggers" and the "Cyclones." Upon gaining admittance, I observed a young lady taking notes on the game. She looked vaguely familiar to me, but I was unable to recall who she was. I found, upon inquiring, that she was none other than Mary Gebert, the famous sports reporter. A short distance away I saw a photographer taking various plays of the game, and upon scrutinizing him more closely, recognized Donald Feters, too intent on his work to recognize me.

However, the scene changed and I stood transfixed, gazing upon the most adorable gown a girl could ever wish. I entered the department store and who should come forward to serve me but Margaret Downend. I purchased the gown and decided to have some lunch.

Farther down the street I entered the Greene and Golde Tea Room. A very dignified appearing hostess greeted me. Who should it be but Ellen Anderson. While I ate my lunch, we talked of old times and old friends back in Plymouth. When I remarked about the beautifully appointed tea room Ellen said she chose the colors in memory of our class and that Louise Ross, now a famous interior decorator, had carried out the idea in an unusual way. At that moment, my gaze wandered to the street where I saw Lyle Biddinger walk by with a very important stride. Ellen told me that Lyle had achieved great success as a football coach. I bade Ellen good-bye and approached a large university building. There I encountered Clifford DeLancy coming out of the laboratory. He told me that he was having a very enjoyable time teaching chemistry, and that Dick Webber was a member of the faculty, teaching Agriculture.

Going out on the street again, I thought that this world ceremony - - - when Flop! A log had fallen apart on the dying embers and I found myself rubbing my eyes trying to remember all that had happened in my very pleasant dream.

Harold: Where is Washington?

Correl: He's dead.

Harold: I mean the capital of the United States.

Correl: They loaned it all to Europe.

Thelma: My father has George Washington's watch.

Ellen: That's nothing. My father has Adam's apple.

Senior Class Will

WE, the Senior Class of 1933, of Plymouth High School, being of good health and sound mind, do make and ordain this our last will and testament in the manner and form following: That is to say:

To the Class of 1934, we bequeath our esteemed dignity.

To the Sophomores, we bequeath our high attendance record

To the Freshmen, we bequeath our ability to enter classes after the bell has rung.

To Supt. Miller, we leave our boop-adoops and little black note books.

To Mr. Derr, we leave our scrap typing paper.

To Miss Camp, we leave our Latin ponies.

To Mr. Murlin, we leave our old hair tonic and sheet music.

To Miss Young and Mr. Olds, we leave our old gym shoes and suits.

As Individuals:

I, Ellen Anderson, do bequeath my dignity to Rhea Kendig.

I, Lyle Biddinger, do bequeath my dimples to Paul Stoodt.

I, Clifford DeLancy, do bequeath my boxing ability to Edward Babcock.

I, Thomas DeWitt, bequeath my Sally Ann to Leslie Fellows

I, Margaret Downend, do bequeath my excess weight to Mildred Woodworth.

I, Thelma Foraker, do bequeath my domestic nature to Cleta Lasch.

Girls Basket Ball

GIRLS' BASKETBALL SUMMARY.

The Plymouth Lassies duplicated their feet of last year and won from every county team except the Lexington girls, who by their victory over the P. H. S. girls, became county champs.

This year four regular players will graduate. They are Captain Ellen Anderson, Forward Rose Guadaynino, Guard Thelma Foraker, and Guard Mary Gebert. This leaves only Forward Doris Hatch and Guard Jane Bachrach of the regulars to carry on next year. But excellent material has developed to replace these graduating players.

Doris Hatch and Ellen Anderson were high point players for the year.

Boys Basketball

BOYS' BASKETBALL SUMMARY

The Plymouth High Basketeers have just finished a most successful season. They have annexed ten victories out of sixteen games played. Quite an impressive record!

Four members of the regular squad have played their last game for Old P. H. S. They are Munn, who has been regular center for two years; DeWitt, guard, also for two years; Scott, forward, and Henry, a guard. These fine players will each leave a vacancy in their respective positions on the team that will be difficult to fill.

In the county tournament Plymouth was eliminated for the championship by their old rivals, Madison, but easily defeated Butler and Lucas to win the consolation trophy. Captain Root was chosen as an all-county guard. DeWitt was placed on the second all-county team also in the position of guard.

Munn has the honor of being high-point man for this year with a total of 133 points. Scott runs second with 101.

Intramural Sports

This year there has been introduced a new feature in the field of sports, that of competitive sports among the classes for both girls and boys. To judge from the response, it has been a success.

The first of the tournaments was basketball. It was won, and rightly so, by the Senior Class in both the girls' and boys' division. As rewards, the first seven players on each team were given bronze medals. The girls who received medals were Captain Mary Gebert, Ellen Anderson, Rose Guadaynino, Thelma Foraker, Katherine Turson, Ruth St. Clair, and Edith Preston. The boys were Captain Thomas DeWitt, Arnold Munn, Correl Scott, Marshall Henry, Harold Miller, Clifford DeLancy, and John Gaskill.

All-tourney teams were picked in both the Junior High and Senior High and for this recognition, the members chosen were given ribbons. The girls' team was chosen as follows: Doris Hatch, captain and forward; Ellen Anderson, forward; Jean Curpen, center; Thelma Foraker, guard; Jane Bachrach, guard; and Mary Gebert, center guard. The boys' Senior High All-tourney team was picked as follows: Ben Smith, captain and forward; Thomas DeWitt, forward; Arnold Munn, center; Jim Root, guard; and Bob Bachrach, guard.

The Junior High All-tourney teams were: the girls'; Christine Guadaynino, captain and forward; Agnes Anderson, forward; Helen Einsel, center; Cleta Lasch, guard; Betty Colyer, guard; and Evelyn Garrett, center guard. The boys'; Clyde Lasch, captain and guard; Vincent Lybarger, forward; Charles Payne, center; Fred Buzzard, forward; Donald Fox, guard.

Another feature was the foul-shooting contest, won by Laurence Cornell, in the Senior High, and Wayne Gebert, in the Junior High, and for the girls', Mary Gebert, in the Senior High, and Bonnie Root for the Junior High.

GLEE CLUB

This club was composed of the students who were interested in music and dramatic advancement. It was divided into a girl's club and a boy's club, for joint meetings, but they united for school activities.

The most looked-forward-to event of the year was the operetta. Due to the shortage of time, it was the only event for public entertainment.

Club officers for this year were:

	GIRLS		BOYS
President	- Mary Gebert	President	- - Correl Scott
Vice President	- - -	Vice President	- Ben Smith
Secretary	- Rose Guadaynino	Secretary	- Lawrence Cornell

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club of 1932-33, sponsored by Mr. Murlin, elected the following officers for the first and second semesters:

President	- - -	Glenn Sponsellor, Ralph Scott
Vice President	- - -	Dayton Cramer, Carl Willford
Secretary	- - -	Charles Rhine, Dayton Cramer

This club spent the year giving reports, experimenting and demonstrating the making of different gasses. At the first of the year, the club decided to welcome the seventh grade as members, who became very interested in the study of science.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Commercial club, under the supervision of Mr. Derr, has passed another successful year. The main events were the banquet given in honor of the new members, and the awarding of typing pins throughout the year.

Club officers for this year were:

President	- - - -	Ellen Anderson, Arnold Munn
Vice President	- - - -	Correl Scott, Mary Gebert
Secretary	- - - -	Edith Preston, James Root

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

The Student Council is composed of the President and a chosen member from each class. The members during the past year were as follows:

Senior Class	-	-	-	-	J. H. Gaskill, Marshall Henry
Junior Class	-	-	-	-	Lawrence Cornell, Stanley Gribbens
Freshman Class	-	-	-	-	Dorothea Echelbarger, Bonnie Root

J. H. Gaskill was President with Marshall Henry as Vice President and Lawrence Cornell as Treasurer.

The main activity of the Council this year, was the selecting of Chapel speakers and arranging the programs. They also sponsored four dances, on Hallowe'en, December 26th, Valentine's Day and St. Patrick's Day. Good orchestras were had and the auditorium was decorated for the occasions. A small admission charge was made and after all bills were paid, there was still a balance in the treasury.

The Student Council wishes to thank the members of the school board and Supt. Miller for their cooperation which made these dances possible.

Home Economics Club

This club was organized last fall under the direction of Miss Young. The most important works of the year were the study of art, etiquette, home furnishings, cooking, sewing, and the making of puppets for the puppet show, which was postponed until next year.

Club officers for this year were:

President	-	-	-	Fayma Sampson, Alphine Doyle
Vice President	-	-	-	Marie Williams, Dorothea Echelbarger
Secretary	-	-	-	Rhea Kendig, Marie Williams

Latin Club

The Latin club was open to all students who were interested in Latin and other foreign languages. In the meetings that were held, topics were discussed and other activities were carried on that could not be studied in an ordinary Latin class. Marshall Henry was president, with Mildred Payne as secretary. Miss Camp was club sponsor.

ART CLUB

This club was open for students who were favored with an interest for art, and was conducted by Mr. Olds. The club's work was very interesting and beneficial. Images were carved in soap, landscape scenes and crayon-ex drawings were made. Work was started in making puppets, which were to be used for a puppet show for the school, but due to the shortening of the school term, it was postponed until next year.

Club officers for this year were:

President	- - -	Lawrence Myers
Vice President	- - -	Lawrence Cornell
Secretary	- - - . . . . -	Richard Major

LITERARY SOCIETIES

During this school year, the Literary Societies were responsible for literary programs appropriate to the following holidays:

CLIONIAN SOCIETY

Discovery Day
Thanksgiving
St. Patrick's Day

ORYTHIAN SOCIETY

Christmas
Arbor Day
Armistice Day

TROPHY CONTEST

On Monday night, May 1st, in the Plymouth High School Auditorium was held the big literary event of the school year. It was the annual Trophy contest which determined whether the Orythian or the Clyonian Society was to have its name engraved upon the handsome trophy provided by the Plymouth Parent Teacher Association. In former years, the trophy was a cup, which, after passing from one society to the other, after several years became the permanent property of the Clionians who won the Trophy Contest for the third successive time in 1931. In order to furnish proper stimulus to this valuable type of competition, the P. T. A. provided a new trophy in the form of a plaque. The Orythian Society has had the honor having its name first grace the new trophy by winning the contest last year.

The contest consisted of competition in the forms of literary exercises listed below. The debate question was "Has the industrial revolution been detrimental to human happiness?"

ORYTHIAN

Decl. Oration	Paul Stoodt (No contestant)
Essay	Stanley Gribbens
Short Story	Jean Curpen
Debate: Negative	Arnold Munn John H. Gaskill

CLIONIAN

	Alphine Doyle Doris Cramer Audrey Dininger Marshall Henry
Affirmative:	Bonnie Root Ben Smith

The contest was won by the Clionian Society. Each Society now has its name on the new trophy and we may be certain to have some lively literary competition in the future.

Our Plymouth Library

Ten years ago on April first, with seventy-six books, donated by The Girl Scouts, as a nucleus, our Library was started.

For a town of this size it is a wonderful institution, and of the greatest help to students in all branches of school work.

The present Library Board consists of Miss Pearl Elder, President, Mesdames S. M. Bachrach, P. H. Root, George Eastman, Edith Kappenberg, George Hershiser, Bert Anderson and Harold Jeffrey as Chief Librarian.

History of Industry of Plymouth Village

Plymouth! What meaning does that word hold for you? To most people it means merely a small town in North Central Ohio, but to others it may be a spot in this vast world that holds dearer memories than any other place in existence. To some, perhaps, a birthplace and early childhood; to others it may be the place of their high school days and joyous years through middle age. I am sure that anyone who has had the pleasure of living in Plymouth, even though it were for a few short months, will be interested in her past history.

GEOGRAPHY. The subsequent industrial development of a district is largely dependent upon its geographical features. The reasons for the settlement of Plymouth were the fertility of the soil, pure drinking water, and good drainage.

The line dividing Huron and Richland counties is one of our main thoroughfares. It is a straight east and west road and is the forty-first parallel. The post office being on the Richland county side, the town is therefore always referred to as being in Richland county.

In the notes of the survey, swamps and prairie lands are occasionally noticed, but the township was generally heavily timbered with all the varieties of hard wood, and is at present, all under a high state of cultivation.

EXPLORATION AND EARLY SETTLEMENT. Over a century ago, what is now the beautiful and thriving town of Plymouth, was a wilderness, inhabited by Indians, its streets but footh-paths through the almost trackless forest over which the swarthy brave passed with stealthy tread on the trail of his fleeing enemy. The arches of the boundless forest rang with defying war car and the beautiful valley of the Huron River was dyed with the carnage of conflict.

Just one hundred and eighteen years ago, four sturdy pioneers wended their way into this scene of sylvan simplicity, and, attracted by the beauty of the location and fertility of the soil, determined to wrest from the wilderness a home.

Plymouth, then Paris, was first settled in 1815, but the town was not plotted until May 17, 1825.

The village was incorporated in 1839, and the name was changed from Paris to Plymouth.

PIONEER INDUSTRIES. Mr. John Webber had been a miller by trade and concluded that he could work out a set of buhrs, or millstones, from the native granite boulders, or "nigger-head" stone, which abounded in this country of almost any size. Selecting two large specimens, he succeeded by great labor in shaping them to suit him. These buhrs, instead of being two flat surfcases working against each other like the French buhr, were made, the neither one in the shape of a cone, and the upper bowl shaped to fit over it. The lower one was made stationery and the upper revolved around it. This mill was run by a little spring stream on Mr. Webber's land, and was a success. It was a curiosity even in that day, and would be much more so today. Part of this mill is still in existence—the bowl part being used as a water trough, at the house of a man named Cline, a short distance south of Shelby Junction. The lower mill stone is in Van Horn's yard on North street. A wheelwright and carpenter named Rouse Bly assisted Mr. Webber in the erection of this mill.

EARLY SOURCES OF POWER. The early settlers of Plymouth township were, perhaps, more than other townships, at a loss about getting their grinding done. There were many brooks and beautiful springs in different parts of the township, but none of sufficient strength for any considerable period of the year, to furnish especially excellent water power. They were compelled, therefore, to travel a great distance for this purpose.

Many horse-mills were erected in different parts of the township. In 1825, Mr. Trux erected a water-mill upon the little stream near his cabin. Steampower was unknown in those days, and this mill could be used only a portion of the year, but it has been operated from that day to this, having been rebuilt and having changed hands many times. Steam power was added in the course of time. For a while it was operated by Snyder and Wolf.

Further down this stream, near Plymouth village, was another mill operated by Ross Cuykendall. It also used steam and water power and was in operation for many years.

On January 1, 1911, Mr. H. J. Schneider started in the lumber business in Plymouth. In 1921, F. A. Schneider succeeded his father. He has been in business ever since that time.

Plymouth now owns her own utilities, water, power and light. Her new water works system was completed in December, 1932, under the present board of public affairs: J. W. McIntire, A. F. Norris, and B. F. Waddington. E. W. Phillips is superintendent of the light plant.

FIRST SPECIALIZED INDUSTRIES. The first blacksmith was Patrick Lynch; the first lawyer, William C. Enos; the first doctor, Lemuel Powers; the first sailor, Mr. Curtis; the first shoemakers, John Skinner and W. V. B. Moore; the first tanner, Hugh Long; the first bricklayer and plasterer, Robert Morfoot; the first wheelwright, A. D. W. Bodley; the first cooper, Anthony McLaughlin; the first cabinet maker, James Drennan; the first carpenters, William Crall, James Dickson and Mr. Gilcrease; the first merchants, Wilson Brothers, Mathew McKelvey and G. G. Graham.

TRANSPORTATION AND ROADS. The old Wyandot trail from the mouth of the Sandusky River to Fort Pitt (Pittsburgh) passes across the northeast corner, through the present village of Plymouth, and the march of General Beall's army was along this trail in 1812. General Beall widened this trail from a narrow path to a road of sufficient width for the passage of his wagons, and although it has been straightened in some places and abandoned in others, it is yet traceable on the map. Beall was guided through this country by a Seneca chief named Captain John, who was a great friend of the whites, and evinced great sagacity as a scout, and in guiding scouting parties of Beall's army. Beall moved very slowly in those days: first, he must cut his way through a dense forest, and, secondly, he desired to keep between the settlements and the Indians of the Northwest. His movement was made immediately after Hull's surrender, when it was feared that a British and Indian army would make a raid across the state of Ohio. He took the route that seemed to be best calculated for his purpose, and this happened to be the old Wyandot trail, before mentioned. General Beall moved slowly and camped frequently, and it is not unlikely that upon leaving Camp Council, he went into camp again upon reaching the headwaters of the Huron River, at this point, and remained in camp here for several days. A year after the war, when Abraham Trux and his companions came along this trail, hunting new homes, they came upon this spot, where Beall had camped, and cleared off a few acres of ground at every camping place, and here built their cabins. They were hunters and backwoodsmen; game was plenty and the country beautiful. They were likely soon to have neighbors, for this open military road would soon become a highway for the incoming emigrants. They were not mistaken; neighbors came to them rapidly and, within the next ten years, sixteen log houses sprang up where the village of Plymouth now stands, and as yet, no town was laid out. Besides, the country was being rapidly settled. The emigrants dropped into the little town one by one as the years came into being, and things making the country delightful, went into the neighborhood and located lands. Many of these were Connecticut Yankees, with land warrants in their pockets, which called for a certain amount of land on the Connecticut Reservation. These people followed the old military road to Paris, now Plymouth, and then went north "blazing" their way to their farms. Thus it was, before Paris was laid out, there were settlements in every direction, and "blazed trails" leading from the village to these different settlements. It is a remarkable fact, that no less than fourteen or fifteen "blazed trails" led through the woods to as many different settlements, all these trails centering in Paris.

The dirt roads of Plymouth in the long ago have been replaced by brick, concrete and stone, and no main road that leads to Plymouth today is unpaved.

Plymouth square was paved with brick in 1911. Sandusky street bonds were sold March 17, 1913. This was followed by the paving of Plymouth, West Broadway, North and Portner streets. Trux street was paved in 1926. This street was named in honor of Abraham Trux, one of the earliest settlers.

In 1848-1850 the Baltimore and Ohio railroad from Sandusky to Newark was built through Plymouth.

In 1886, the Akron, Canton, and Youngstown railroad was built from Akron to Deshler.

The S. N. & M., an electric line from Norwalk to Shelby, was built through Plymouth in 1905 and 1906, and abandoned in 1924.

FACTORIES. Our manufacturing interests today are centered in the Fate-Root-Heath Company, who manufacture the well known Plymouth Locomotive, tile and clay machinery, lawn mower grinders and other novelties.

When this company was started in 1888, it was known as the J. D. Fate Company. They manufactured brick and tile machinery. In 1890, the Root-Heath company moved here from New London. They manufactured Hardware specialties and lawnmower sharpeners, and in 1914 started to build "Plymouth" gasoline locomotives. In 1919, these two companies merged into what is known as the Fate-Root-Heath Manufacturing Co. They manufacture brick and tile machinery, hardware specialties, lawnmower sharpeners and locomotives.

These locomotives are of the gasoline and Diesel type. Their sizes range from two and one-half to sixty tons. They are used in construction work, quarries, sand, gravel and clay pits, mining, logging, on shortline railroads, general hauling and in sugar plantations.

About ten per cent of the sales of these locomotives have been in foreign countries.

In normal times, this factory employes from two hundred to two hundred and fifty men.

The officials of the company are: President, John A. Root; Vice-President and General Manager, C. E. Heath; Secretary, H. F. Root; Treasurer, P. H. Root.

The John S. Fleming factory, manufacturer of porch furniture, swings and novelties, is another interest in the village of Plymouth.

BANKS. The first bank was established in 1839 by a Mr. Barder of which he was the president until the time of his death in 1859. This was continued by Robert McDonough, Sr., until 1870, when Mr. McDonough opened a regular bank of discount and deposit on the site now occupied by the Lasch barbershop. This continued until his death in 1873.

The First National Bank was organized with S. M. Robinson, president; H. C. Breckenridge, vice-president. Other presidents of the bank were H. C. Breckenridge, Josiah Brinkerhoff, W. B. Cuykendall and D. F. Ervin.

On November 13, 1903, the Peoples National Bank was organized and opened for business on January 2, 1904, with Henry Willment, president, and located on the south side of the square. Later when the First National Bank closed its doors on the corner of Main and Sandusky streets, the bank building was purchased by the Peoples National Bank. The present officers are Robert H. Nimmons, president; John I. Beelman, vice president; J. Eldon Nimmons, cashier, and Carl M. Lofland, assistant cashier.

NEWSPAPERS. In 1851, E. H. Sanford started a paper in Plymouth village, called the Plymouth Journal, in the old "Peninsular" building, which was for many years occupied as a photograph gallery. In 1853, he sold out to H. M. Wooster, who conducted it a short time, and sold out to Robinson & Locke (the latter generally known as Petroleum V. Nasby), who changed the name of the paper to the Plymouth Advertiser. In 1859, the concern was purchased by Balsley. Balsley conducted it until January, 1864, when he sold out to J. M. Beelman, who afterward took his brother, J. Frank Beelman, into partnership, and together they conducted the paper until 1876, when J. M. Beelman retired, and the paper has since been conducted by many different persons. At present, Peyton W. Thomas conducts the Plymouth Advertiser, a weekly paper. Mr. Thomas has successfully printed the last five Plymouth High school annuals, along with many annuals for other schools.

PLACES OF AMUSEMENT. The first picture show held in Plymouth was at the Hamilton Hall, above the bank. This was the town's amusement "palace" until the Plymouth theatre was built.

The first regular shows were held where Hough's Meat Market is now located. Later Mr. Diesler came here from Mansfield and constructed the Deisler theatre in 1915. This show was very much of a success until the "talkies" were introduced. After this its patronage began to decrease and people went to other towns for shows.

After the death of Mr. Deisler, the theatre changed hands several times. It has been completely redecorated and new equipment installed since, and is up-to-date in every respect.

At present the theatre is operated by Arthur Matthews, who has installed up-to-date equipment of the best kind and who is a very capable operator. He will appreciate your patronage.

PLYMOUTH FAIR GROUNDS. Plymouth's first fair ground was established a few years before the Civil War. It was located on the north side of West Broadway. The east gate was at the place where Wallace Sisinger now resides and the west gate was at the residence of Mrs. Seahaltz. The grounds then extended north to the land owned by Wm. Ellis.

The grounds included a good race track, and many buildings and stables for exhibits and horses. The event known as the Plymouth Fair took place once every year in the fall. Horses were entered from all over the country and some worth while exhibits were displayed.

With the development of state and county fairs the local fair did not pay and the grounds were laid out in building lots.

ELEVATORS. The first elevator was built approximately one hundred years ago. It was situated where the B. & O. railroad bridge now stands on West Broadway. The elevator was built across the tracks so that the train could stop underneath and the grain could be poured down into the cars. The elevator was owned by S. M. Robinson who later became president of the First National Bank.

The elevator was purchased by A. T. Shaffer who moved it up where the present equity now stands. The grain was ground by horse power. Shaffer then sold it, but after a short time, purchased it back.

Shaffer then sold it to Guthrie, who operated it until about 1909. Guthrie sold out to C. R. Einsel in 1913. A group of men bought it, who consolidated and called it the Plymouth Equity.

In 1926, Sehringer and MacDougal bought it. It was run successfully by them until about four years ago when D. W. Einsel bought it and is the present owner.

PHARMACIES. In 1904, Pancoast and Nicholes established a drug store, located in the present library building. This was taken over in 1911 by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Judson, and was operated by them for over a period of seventeen years. Due to the fact that Mr. Judson was injured, the store was sold to Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Votaw, who operated the store until after Mr. Votaw's death. The store room now houses the public library.

The Webber Drug Store was established in the Portner building now occupied by R. F. Meacham's shine shop and cream station, with T. J. Webber and Albert Kirkpatrick as partners. In 1885 the store was moved to the present location, just after the building was built. In 1901, because of the illness and death of Mr. Webber, his son, Karl, succeeded him in the business with Mr. Kirkpatrick. The partnership continued for eight years, then Karl Webber bought out Mr. Kirkpatrick's half interest in the store. Since then he has been successful in continuing the business.

RESTAURANTS. The travel on the military road brought many strangers to this place, and made "taverns" a necessity. Before the place was two years old, three of these institutions existed, kept by James Drennan, Jacob Heller and Mr. Lindsay, where the "hog, hominy and whisky," wild meats and "corn pone" were plentifully spread before the mud-besplattered stage-drivers and their weary passengers.

In 1847, the Strong tavern was on the site of the Ford Soda Grill and the Wolfenberfer tavern on the site of the Sourwine Hotel.

The Tourist Inn was opened in 1923, with L. Derringer and O. A. DeVore as managers. Mr. DeVore later bought out Mr. Derringer's interest and is still the owner of the only inn in Plymouth.

In February, 1930, Wayne Somerlott opened the Home Restaurant and has continued to operate it until the present time.

The Ford Soda Grill was opened for business on November 29, 1930. This is operated by the well known "Pop" Ford, and is an attractive eating place for the people of Plymouth as well as for tourists, to say nothing of the well known fact that it is a favorite "hang out" for the high school students.

The Mayflower Restaurant was opened for business in February, 1932, and is owned and operated by Mr. Watts. This is the most recent store of its kind in Plymouth, but the attractiveness and cleanliness of the place have made it one of Plymouth's favorite eating places.

GROCERIES. The first grocery and bakery was that of Mr. and Mrs. Webster, located on the site of the Brown and Miller hardware store.

The grocery stores of Plymouth have changed hands many times, but are known at present as the following: Edwards Food Stores, owned and operated by Dudley and Freyman; The Kroger Store, managed by A. D. Points; Cornell and Cornell, owned and operated by A. F. Cornell and sons, opened in March, 1929; Hough's Market, owned and operated by J. W. Hough and sons, opened for business on October 17, 1929; Shutt's Grocery, owned and operated by H. B. Shutt, was opened in June, 1930; the meat market recently owned by C. C. Darling, was leased to George Foster, who will continue to handle quality meats.

LEATHER INDUSTRIES. The first tanner of Plymouth was Hugh Long, who did this work in his home.

Up to 1850, shoes were made by the village shoemakers, the first being John Skinner and W. V. B. Moore. Then a Mr. Case opened a shoe store in the building where the Roger's shoe store is now located.

Mr. Myers opened his shoe repair and harness shop in 1924. This has been successfully continued by him since that time.

In 1924, R. B. Hatch opened a shoe store and repair shop on the site of the present Hough Meat market. He later continued his business in the present library building. His store is now known as "Hatch's Hat, Dress, and Shoe Shop," and is located on the northwest portion of the public square.

In 1885, when Wells Rogers returned from the Civil War, he bought out Veau Day, who had a shoe store where Roger's Shoe store is now located. He sold only boots and work shoes. At the same time Mike Dick started a shoe repair stand in the back end of the store. The two continued business until their deaths. Then Mack Roger's carried on his father's business. Mr. John Beelman ran it for five years, but Mr. Rogers again took it over and has continued until this day.

HARDWARE STORES. The history of the Plymouth Hardware Store dates back to about sixty years ago. Phillip Upp was the original owner of the business. Mr. Robert Nimmons was a clerk in the store and married the daughter of the owner, Miss Margaret Upp. Upon the death of Mr. Upp, the store reverted to Mr. and Mrs. Nimmons. The original location of the store was the place where the present Red Front Market now stands. Mr. Nimmons then moved over into the three story brick building which is known as the Milo B. Lee building. He turned the store over to his son, Fred, who conducted the business a great number of years. He then sold the business to Brown & Miller, who are the present owners.

BARBER SHOPS AND BEAUTY PARLORS. The first barber shop in Plymouth was owned and operated by Mr. Charley Florey. He sold it to Mr. May, who in turn sold it to Mr. Scott. Mr. Scott sold it to Mr. Louis Derringer, who held sole ownership until he recently sold half interest to Mr. May. It is now operated under the name of Derringer-May Barber Shop.

At one time, Mr. George Hoffman operated a jewelry store and later Mr. C. O. Myers established a barber shop there. In 1921, Mr. Joseph Lasch bought the shop and now operates a successful business with the help of Mr. Lowell Keith. They have modern equipment and are ready to serve you in an efficient and courteous manner.

In the latter part of May, 1931, Mr. Barry Robinson established a small barber shop in the room next to Darling's Meat Market. In about two months he moved across the street and in connection with his barber business, he established the Kewpie Beauty Parlor, under the direction of Miss Alice Van Wagner. In December, 1931, Mr. Robert Lewis bought the shop and now enjoys a successful business under the name of "Bob's Barber Shop."

In 1929, Mrs. Lowell Keith established equipment at her home on West Broadway for giving finger waves. She has gradually improved her equipment so as to take care of the demands for hair dressing more efficiently. In 1931 she received training for permanent waving and is now fully equipped to give lasting permanent waves.

In February, 1930, Mrs. Arthur Meyers established a beauty parlor at her home on Sandusky street, above the harness shop. She was equipped to do finger waving, marcelling, hair cutting and shampooing. In the fall of 1931, she received training for permanent waving, and at the present time enjoys a successful business.

In 1931, Mrs. Lillian Voisard established a beauty parlor at her home on Sandusky street. She gives finger waves, shampoos, and Eugene Permanent Waves. She is a graduate of the Eugene School of Beauty Culture, and has all modern equipment. Mrs. Voisard is willing to serve you at any time.

BLACKSMITHS. When Mr. Lynch ran his own horse shoes, but he made wagons and any other things of which the early settlers had need and which required the forging of iron. As time went on, articles made in factories could be shipped in cheaper than they could be made by hand, and blacksmithing developed into the shoeing of horses and general repairing, such as putting on new tires on wagons.

For a time, Mr. Day ran a blacksmith shop where Curpen's jewelry store is now located.

The increasing use of the automobile removed from the blacksmith his chief remaining task, the shoeing of horses.

Today, the needs of blacksmithing in the community are served by Clay Hulbert, who has his shop on Portner street. He not only shoes the remaining horses, but provides an important service with his skill in repairing innumerable kinds of implements and machines.

DRAYING. Sixty-five years has seen many changes in the draying methods of Plymouth. The older residents have seen the transition from a two-wheeled cart to a modern, up-to-date Ford truck. The heavier hauling of today necessitates different methods.

But little information can be obtained of the men who conducted the business of draying in Plymouth a half century ago.

The first one of whom any information can be obtained is John Ferguson, an uncle of Mrs. Ned Lofland. Mr. Ferguson was an Albino with pink eyes and white hair. He was in business a great many years.

We have knowledge of George Taylor, the father of Mrs. C. F. Root, who was in business between fifty-five or sixty years ago. Mrs. Root remembers a favorite dray horse he sold and becoming concerned over it's care, took his money in hand and bought it back the next day. He also dealt in plaster, lime, hair, and cement. Mr. Taylor used a two wheeled cart.

HISTORY OF INDUSTRY OF PLYMOUTH VILLAGE

Then at least fifty-one years ago, we have information concerning another Ferguson, Martin M., who lived on Bell street, and is still living in Cleveland. Ruben Cole, was another, and in time Cole and Ferguson were partners. How long, we don't know. Mrs. Cole is still living in Willard.

We cannot fail to mention Jim Abbott of Sandusky street as a drayman, John Hunt, an uncle of Dell Waite, who also hauled coal and teamed; Bill High, dray and coal hauling; Joe Lombard, who wore earrings and lived where the Robert Nimmons residence now stands on Sandusky street. He conducted a feed store where the Home Restaurant is now located and stabled his horse back of the "Billstein" wool house. Then mention is made of a Bodley, who lived in the Cornell house, corner of High and Bell streets. We find this is the second old time drayman to live in that house. Clay Morse, our country neighbor, lived in the McDonough house on Franklin street, and did a pretty bit of draying. Tommy Barr was an expressman, and ran a dray or express cartage from the Big Four in Shiloh, and carted all the millinery supplies for Dolly Hanick's shop. Ream Kuhn, a cousin of Mrs. Katherine Taylor is another ancient drayman of whom little is known. Bill Mellick has a place in Plymouth's draying history some forty or fifty years ago, but nothing in particular can be learned of his activities or characteristics.

Then there was George Boardman, who lived on Trux street, with his beautiful bay team "Bill and Doc" cared for by his son, Will, now living in Modesto, California. Quite a stir was created one day when Boardman was loading kegs in the alley back of what is now the Peoples National Bank and a keg rolled against the heels of blind Bill. He became frightened, dashed across the street, brought up against the side of a building and was knocked unconscious.

We have no information concerning the regime of Morgan Shaver, son-in-law of Dr. Sykes, as drayman except it must have been during the 80's or 90's for on April 3, 1893, over forty years ago, George Hurst came here from Frederickstown, and he and his brother-in-law, R. E. McKee, then B. & O. agent, purchased the dray business from Shaver. These men continued as partners for four years. At the end of that time, Mr. Hurst became sole owner and continued in the business for twenty-five years, doing hauling and transferring and handling mail and express. Ed Barr and "Blandy" were two of his able assistants. We believe Mr. Hurst's dray business could be called extensive for a village of this size. He and his family are still living on the north side of the square in Plymouth. In 1916 he retired from active business in favor of K. I. Wilson.

Frank Myers, or "Cindie" as he is better known, did some draying and teaming something less than forty years ago. He used a fat, shining, well-fed team of horses and took pride in the fact that they were such.

Lemuel Hale teamed, drayed and moved his neighbors about from 1903 to 1908. He bought a white team, Tom and Maude, from Fred Mills, Tom died, then Charley, a boy horse, took his place.

About 1903, Elias Helfer bought from Frank Myers, a horse and wagon "the whole ball of wax for fifty dollars," Elias says, and thus was launched the business of "E. B. Helfer, drayman extraordinary." Sometimes "Doc" used two horses, sometimes only one, but "Honey Bee" and "Nicaragua," (Nig for short) stand out more prominently in Plymouth's memory. Many a piece of freight or express from your favorite mail order house has "Doc" deposited at your front door with "neatness and dispatch." In 1930 Mr. Helfer retired from business, and went West for a short time. Last year he purchased another horse (Bessie, if you please) and wagon and his cheery "Finer day" reminds us of the twenty-seven years of service he has rendered this community as drayman.

Many an resident can recall Frank Clark's period of draymanship. Straight as a ramrod was "Bully," and as he lashed his fiery steeds into a mad gallop to make a spectacular dash to a fire with the hose cart being drawn behind his dray wagon, the village urchins thought it was great. Our present beautiful red fire truck can't create half the thrill in the breast of young America that "Bully" Clark and his horse wagon could. Mr. Clark and Kirk I. Wilson, now living on Sandusky Street, took over the reins in 1916 from George Hurst. Nothing spectacular, except he served the villagers in the capacity of drayman superb; Uncle Sam as mailcarrier, railroads, as expressman for a period of three years. Then Earl and Frank Sheeley took over the business for about a year and they in turn sold out to Ben Blanchard, now living in Willard. Mr. Blanchard was in business as late as 1925. He disposed of his business to his son-in-law, Horace Willett, who is serving us at the present time. This up-to-the-minute energetic young drayman with his green truck can be seen at almost any time during the day serving his towns people to the best of his ability. He took over all the express and freight business from Doc Helfer in 1930, and is intrusted with the mails to and from the depot. He with his little family are living on Portner street and we believe that young "Doug" will be schooled in these various activities to such an extent that he can "carry on," also, and there will be "no Flies" on the Willett dray business.

Wilson Day, an alumnus of the class of 1929, has recently embarked upon one of Plymouth's newest enterprises, Day's delivery service. Wilson now gives delivery service to nearly all the merchants of Plymouth.

We pay honest tribute to these faithful men, who throughout the years, through sunshine and storm, early and late, have answered the call for a careful drayman; a mover who will break the legs off the diningroom table, or bread the glass on Aunt Emma's enlarged picture. Well, we've had 'em and got 'em now.

FURNITURE AND UNDERTAKING. The Miller-Scott Company was founded in 1931 by George E. D. Scott and Louise Miller as successors to Charles G. Miller, and are dealers in fine furnishings for the home.

The funeral business was founded on the basis of Courteous and Efficient Service. This phase of the work coupled with the best available in workmanship and materials goes to make up a successful and growing concern.

They wish to thank their friends for their past and future patronage.

CLOTHING INDUSTRIES. The D. B. King Dry Goods Company was located where the present Kroger store stands. As a youth, J. W. McIntire came to Plymouth as a clerk in this store, and when Mr. King retired in about 1914, Mr. McIntire purchased the store. Later he bought the building now known as the Plymouth Dry Goods Company, in which he still remains an interest.

For a while, this establishment was owned by The Holder Company, with another branch, in Fremont.

Huron Parker operated a dry goods store in the room now occupied by the Rule Clothing Company, and at his death, L. L. BeVier, who had been his clerk, purchased the store and operated it until 1811, when Miss Eleanora Taylor purchased it. She later moved the store to the present location of the Lippus Dry Goods store and continued in business there until in 1926. The next year H. J. Lippus purchased it.

After the removal of Miss Taylor's store, a new store was established, known as the Rule and Byrd Clothing Company. After dissolution of partnership, Mr. Rule continued the business, and is still operating under the N. B. Rule Clothing Company.

Thomas Page does pressing and dry cleaniny, and owns the only establishment of its kind in Plymouth.

JEWELRY STORES. Ferdinand Curpen, a native of Germany, established a jewelry store in Plymouth and in 1886, moved into the building now occupied by his son, Edward B. Curpen, who succeeded his father in business in 1913. Mr. Curpen is a thoroughly competent repairman and bears the reputation of his father before him in the work.

BAKERIES. In 1919, Wilbur DeWitt bought the bakery which had been run by Gus Artz, and later by a Mr. Crumbaugh. Later, Jesse Lehman ran the bakery for a time. In 1929, DeWitt again moved to town and took personal charge. They have installed the latest type of machinery and ovens. Their baked goods are sold not only in Plymouth, but by markets in many of our neighboring villages.

GARAGES AND FILLING STATIONS. With the coming of the automobile era, many of the blacksmith shops and livery stables were converted into garages and filling stations. Notable examples are those of the George Tinkey blacksmith shop which was converted into the Dinger Garage and the Lofland's livery stable which was converted into the Russell Garage. A complete history of the development of these two industries in Plymouth would be too long to give here, so we will pass over the period until we come to the modern era.

In 1912, T. R. Ford opened a garage on the east corner of the square, and in 1927, he moved to the present location on Trux street, where he sells a full line of accessories, parts, tires, gas and oil.

In 1920, Ray Dinger converted the Tinkey blacksmith shop into a garage and in 1926 built the present brick building. He now does general repairing and welding and handles a full line of accessories. He also sells gas and oil.

In 1912, Paul Russell bought out the Feters garage and in 1923, moved back of the Elementary school building. In June, 1928, he moved to the present location at the east end of the square, where he operates one of the most modern garages and wrecking services in the village.

In February, 1923, the Sohio filling station on the corner of Sandusky street and Brazilian was constructed and leased to John Hester. In May, 1929, O. L. Taylor became the Sohio commission agent for this station. This station is equipped with the most modern lubricating supplies, including Sohio's Point by Point Recorded Lubrication Service.

In August, 1924—Frank Caldwell opened a tire repair shop and filling station at his present location on Plymouth street, where he repairs tires and rubber goods.

On January 1, 1928, the Plymouth Oil Company was opened on Plymouth street. This company is opened and operated by W. E. and W. W. Wirth.

In April, he 1932, the Shell Station was opened on Plymouth street, and is operated by Mr. Holland.

In March, 1933, Donnenwirth Brothers moved from Bell street to their present location on Plymouth street, where they do general repairing.

C. M. Ervin sells Canfield Gas and Oil and specializes in ignition and battery charging.

W. C. McFadden is agent for Plymouth and Chrysler cars, and does an extensive used-car business.

SEED AND WOOL. This storage house is located on the corner of West High and Railroad streets and was constructed and operated by the late Mose Billstein. For a number of years, the business has been run by the Israel Bachrach sons, Mose, Sam, and the late Alex. They also conduct an uptown store on the south side of the square. They engage in the handling of cattle, also.

The following recreation and lunch rooms are now being operated: Christy Weber's Cafe, Brit's Place, A. F. Norris Pool Parlor.

As a memorial to the event of Plymouth taking first prize in the state band contest, a band stand was built in the middle of our spacious public square. In the basement of this, Hiram Beckwith started an ice cream stand. In 1911, he moved to the present location.

Mr. R. F. Meacham, who formerly conducted a confectionery on the north side of the square, has moved to the south side of the square and now operates a cream station.

Mrs. Mary Chappell now conducts the Chappell cream station, which had been operated for many years by her late husband.

SECOND HAND STORE. The late depression has fostered the second hand business because many people who have held articles of value now feel the need of ready cash for them.

No doubt this condition inspired Mr. Kellerman to open a second hand store in the K. of P. block on Dest Broadway. About two years ago, the Cramers took over the operation of the store, which contains an interesting array of antiques.

PLUMBING. For a number of years, F. L. Becker was established above the present Cornell store. After his death, the firm was continued in the name of his widow until the business was bought out by Mr. H. E. Kendig on April 6th, 1926. He was located in the basement room on the southwest corner of the square until April 6th, 1933. Since which time he has been located in the Briggs building on West Broadway. Mr. Kendig sells Rudy furnaces, Flint Walling electric pumps, and does all kinds of plumbing work, tinning, etc., for a reasonable price.

Alton Becker, a son of F. L. Becker, is continuing in his father's trade.

Some twenty years ago, Charles Brown had a plumbing shop where Hiram Beckwith's store is now located. He was succeeded by C. A. Davis, who later discontinued the store. Recently he began again to give his full time to plumbing and heating business. He is an agent for Williamson furnaces and does plumbing work.

Harry Hills specializes in roofing and spouting.

OBERLIN SCHOOL OF COMMERCE. This school is coming out of the business depression in fine condition and now occupies a position as one of the leading schools of business training in the entire country. It has trained thousands of accountants, secretaries, stenographers, and auditors who are filling prominent positions in all parts of the United States and other countries. Many prominent bank official, bank examiners and industrialists made their preparation at the Oberlin School of Commerce and look back to their days in this school as the beginning of their success.

The fact that this school admits only those having at least high school education makes it possible to offer stronger courses than the average business school. The 1933 graduates of our High School would find a course in this school of great value to them.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOPS. The W. H. Fetters Machine Repair Shop serves many a citizen in time of need. If Mr. Fetters does not have the repair article in stock he is always able to make it.

Joseph Price has a shop at the rear of his residence in which bicycles and a surprising number of other articles are repaired.

Dorian's Shaving Shop is the outlet for the genius of Dominick Dorian who always has some new ideas in the way of garden furniture and decorations and all kinds of art work.
