This Year's Book Dedicated To Our Parents

WE, THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS
OF 1937, DESIRE TO PAY THIS TRIBUTE TO OUR PARENTS WHO HAVE SACRIFICED FOR US BY GIVING OF THEIR ENCOURAGE-MENT, FUNDS, AND MORAL SUPPORT DURING OUR DAYS IN SCHOOL. BECAUSE OF THIS WE WISH TO EXPRESS OUR THANKS TO YOU IN THE DEDICATION OF THIS YEARBOOK.

OUR SUPERINTENDENT

E. L. BAILEY, Superintendent
B. S. Ohio Northern University;
A. M. Ohio State University; Mathematics

WE, THE SENIORS, wish to acknowledge the many kind considerations our Superintendent has shown us. Through Mr. Bailey's foresight and ability our school has made rapid strides in higher education. Through his untiring efforts he has been instrumental in securing for the school and community a wonderful athletic field, for which we are deeply grateful, as those who follow us will enjoy it more each year. It is but fitting that we pay tribute to Supt. E. L. Bailey.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

OUR BOARD OF EDUCATION CONSISTS OF RUSSELL SCOTT PRESIDENT; WILLARD ROSS, CLERK; EARL HEATH, ROY JOHNSON, AND O. L.
TAYLOR. THESE MEN HAVE ALWAYS KEENLY FELT THE NEEDS OF THE COMMUNITY, AND HAVE ENDEAV-ORED TO SATISFY THE DESIRES OF OUR STUDENT BODY, AS BEST THEY COULD.
THEIR INTERESTS HAVE MADE
OUR SCHOOL MORE PROF-ITABLE FOR US.

IN THIS EDITION, WE WISH TO EXPRESS OUR SINCERE APPRECIATION FOR THEIR EFFORTS

FACULTY

EVEN the thoughtless youth of the student body realizes that little could be accomplished without special guidance. This was carefully given by each member of the faculty. Their interests in the school and with us have shown the value of cooperative effort and unified action. We appreciate their efforts in our behalf.

The Senior Class Officers and Staff

The last act, in which we are the principal characters, is almost over. Ere long the curtain will fall, but the lights will not be dimmed. We expect to go on, even though our days as students of Plymouth High School are over. We trust that we may promote a cooperative spirit and remain loyal to and for all that is for the advancement of the name of Plymouth High School.

CLASS PROPHECY

ALONG LIFE'S HIGHWAY the class of '37 of Plymouth High School, drifted until it was in the year of our Lord 1957.

The sky was bedded with blazing stars, when suddenly one seemed to take form of a person located in a large airport in San Francisco, Calif., where some people were about to board a large passenger air liner. The two pilots were Bob Hunter and Bob Nimmons making their world record flight with Violet VanBuskirk as their air hostess. The latter pilot and Miss VanBuskirk were fulfilling their school romance as it was budding into a happy affair. Each star had its own tale to foretell, so as I lay on the beach, my classmates' vocation was enacted before me.

Suddenly one star presented a part of the sports world in Denver, Colorado, where Agnes Anderson was proving her ability at tennis, having made of herself a woman champion. This display was very unusual and most exciting. Abruptly there appeared a large office of an Interior Decorator in New Jersey, where Maxine Myers was presiding over the business, her art work in High School had given her a start. Following this star there arose a mammoth official building which looked to be a government office in Washington, D. C. A convention was being held and occupying the place of authority was our President of the Senior Class during the year '37, Edward Babcock, now a great speaker of our International affairs. I could see a young lady seated beside him who caused me to believe she was his private secretary; it was none other than Dorothy France, whose secretarial work carried her far.

With each event, the stars then folded into the deep blue blankets where they slept.

A smaller star shone forth bringing me a vision of a small but exclusive College in Southern Wisconsin, under the leadership of Jeanette Hamilton's capable hand. Some of the Professors in this smart school were Helen Noble, director of advanced mathematics, Cleta Lasch, director of chemistry and Paul Fenner director of the language group.

Appearing as tho' from a great distance one bright heavenly body brought to light the huge Metropolis, New York City, where a large beauty salon greeted my eyes. A brilliantly lighted sign blazed "Madam Lucille Echelbarger's Salon." At last, I discovered what her day dreams in High School were. I obtained sight of her assistant Mary Turson ascending in her profession. Directly across from this establishment an Orchestra was rehearsing for their evening program. Their featured "Blues Singer was our little Pee Wee," known as Mary Fenner, who having caught her public's eye was trying to capture her leaders heart, Guy Lombardo Jr., famous as his father was when the class of '37 was to be graduated.

As I lay here wondering if any of my chums would be in the old home town, a familiar setting appears in the brilliant gleam of a star. A large chain store was first to greet my eyes. The sign "Kroger Company" under the management of Jerry Caywood made me feel a trifle homesick. I could see Plymouth had grown to be quite a city and our little Kroger boy had made a place for himself. I thought he was the only one who had remained in our fair village, but to my surprise I saw a large home very beautiful in its structure with the sign "Mortuary" with LeRoy Briggs, mortician, whose efforts during High School to make his life worth while were not in vain.

The planets seemed to be getting restless, and were traveling swiftly over the sky. There was revealed the large Music Hall in New York City where Isabelle BeVier was making her debut in the music world. Her faithfulness in taking vocal lessons while in High School gave her a great advantage.

These many strange happenings caused me to believe almost anything that might follow. The scene quickly changed to that of another star where a foreign country was next to greet my eyes. A large television station in Liverpool, England, was the location. The Engineer in charge was Charles Dick, whose finesse in electricity in High School brought him far. Remaining in Europe, another planet brought my gaze to Rome, where Christine Guadaynino was climbing high in the world as a foreign newspaper correspondent.

A strange group was next in view, reminding me of the old basketball team '37. To my surprise I recognized Clyde Lasch and his two team mates, Don Fox and Charles Payne, progressing as professional men in that line in Europe.

A distant star came blazing toward me bringing the scene of a prominent studio in Hollywood, Calif., which was under the supervision of Wayne Gebret who had attained his school day ambition.

The meteors were gradually bending into the blue, but a star here and there remained unchanged. One took the form of a foreign office in Cairo, Egypt where Elizabeth Kemp was attending to the business affairs of the Ambassador from the United States, Richard Coe, a man of great intellectual ability.

The constellations, having done their duty in revealing to me the path my school mates had taken, faded into the darkness. A small light then came into view to remind me of one more of the class of '37 to be revealed. Greeta Keeler was living in Colorado Springs, proprietress of a Dude Ranch.

At this my story comes to an end with all the class of '37 unfolded before you. Goodnight and '37.

THE SENIOR CLASS PLAY

"The College Hobo," the senior class production, was presented May 20, in the High School Auditorium. The scene was laid in the village of Mountain Hill, where lived Sally Sims, played by Cleta Lasch and her father, an eccentric old farmer, Charles Dick. Sally has an intense desire to go to college but because her father is poor, she finds this impossible. Marvin Marshall, taken by Don Fox, a ministerial student at Blake University encourages Sally to go to college. She mysteriously receives a gift of twenty dollars per month to put toward her education. At the same time, the "Hobo" Rodney Rochester, played by Paul Fenner, visits the Sim's home on one of his escapades from college. He falls in love with Sally and as a result reforms and decides to really put some effort in his college work.

The second act finds Sally in college working in one of the private dining rooms. "Hobo" has taken a job as dishwasher in the kitchen to be near her. The climax of the play occurs when Sally is accused of stealing money from the returns of a Church play to buy new clothes and pay her way through school. Her chief accusers are her cousin, Susie Johnson, taken by Agnes Anderson, and Johnnie Johnson, Robert Hunter. All ends happily, however, when "Hobo" discovers that Johnnie is the real thief, and it is revealed that he has given Sally the money. A foursome, including Sally and Hobo, Marvin Marshall and Patricia Rochester, Greeta Keeler, find romance.

The part of Miss Weaver, the dignified dining supervisor was played by Jeanette Hamilton. The parts of three attractive college coeds were taken by Lucille Echelbarger, Dorothy France, and Violet VanBuskirk. Adolphus "Red," a "green" college freshman was enacted by Edward Babcock. LeRoy Briggs was cast in the role of the President of Blake University.

All of the cast showed fine dramatic ability. The audience was kept constantly amused by the clever lines and the fast-moving action. Each senior seemed to fit into his part and gave evidence that he enjoyed playing the role.

The play was under the direction of Sherman Moist, the senior English instructor.

PLAYGROUND DEDICATION PROGRAM

It is with considerable gratitude that we know that we have a splendid playground. Long, have the people of our community desired such a place, where all might spend their leisure time in wholesome recreation. It was only through the unified efforts of our administrative forces that our place to play is made a reality. When the U. S. Government offered to help, every effort was put forth to accept of its generosity. We now have four tennis courts, horse-shoe courts, baseball diamond, softball diamond and field plot for the community usage. We feel that a place for wholesome amusement will aid in inspiring young and old with the best of pleasure. While none are trained to be professionals, is hoped that all may learn how to play for the physical, social and moral betterment of themselves.

The playground was dedicated very fittingly on May 25th with the following program:

OPERETTA

"Riding Down the Sky," which was most efficiently played to a large audience, November 24, proved to be one of the most colorful and enjoyable operettas ever presented in Plymouth High School.

The plot was laid in one of the Spanish republics of Central America and concerned the trials of a president and his fair daughter, who were troubled by revolutionists. The country has been unable to pay the soldiers for a long time and they are in the mood to revolt. Suddenly some Americans appear on the scene, having made a forced landing because of trouble with their plane. The president's daughter falls in love with the airplane pilot, and refuses to marry the aged but extremely wealthy suitor that her father desires. All ends happily, for the revolutionists are thwarted in the end. Their attempt to bomb the water works leads to the discovery of oil, and the country is once more financially able to pay her soldiers.

Several seniors played important roles in the production. Greeta Keeler, as the leading lady, gave an outstanding performance. Charles Hockenbury took the part of the hero, and sang the tenor lead in fine style. Don Fox as the president showed his ability to act the part of an old man. Paul Fenner and Isabelle BeVier enacted the roles of an elderly senor and senora. Their musical effort in the "Charms of Middle Age" was perhaps the high spot of the performance. Clyde Lasch played the comic lead, and with his red tie, socks and ankle high trousers, his antics were good for many laughs. Cleta Lasch was the "revolutionary" spouse of the leader of the revolution. George France was the president's body guard. Lucille Echelbarger was charming as a gay Spanish Senorita. Many other seniors augmented the chorus and added greatly to the fine musical work.

The musical end of the production was capably handled by Mr. Basil Alt. The costumes were in charge of Miss Alta Bancroft of the Home Economics Department. The manual training boys under Mr. John Maxwell's direction, designed the Spanish setting. Mr. Sherman Moist was in charge of the direction of the speaking parts.

SCHOOL DISPLAY

On May 11, the entire school organization gave a display of the work of the year. Each grade showed some of the work done. The rooms were elaborately decorated in their showings of art, writing, work books, and activity work. Following this, all were treated to an unusual program of music under the direction of Mr. Alt at the H. S. Auditorium. Then the High School display was open for inspection. The commercial, manual arts, Latin-English, Science, Mathematics, Social Science, and Home Economics departments showed the work of the students. It was one of the most educational and valuable displays of school work ever beheld by the patrons of our district. Much credit is due all of the teachers who guided us in making this a crowning event.

OUR AUDITORIUM was most beautifully decorated with blue and white streamers, thus forming a canopy completely over the gymnasium floor. A bountiful, delicious, three course dinner was served, followed by a floor show and dance. The entertainment and music were furnished by the Ernie Family. We are indeed thankful for this honor paid us by the Junior Class.

CUSTODIAN

MR. CHRIST SHEELY

Mr. Sheely has labored long and diligently for our comfort and welfare. His cheerful disposition, genial attitude, and pleasant smile, have always been an inspiration to us. Any favors we may ask of him are always granted with a cheerful readiness.

We recognize him as being the one who keeps the mechanical side of Plymouth High School in smooth running order.

★ HONOR STUDENTS

It has been the aim to win honors for the school. In so doing, each student who participates gains fame for himself or herself. During the past year single honor achievements have been gained by some of our students. They are:

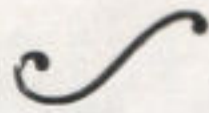

Paul Fenner, Senior, earns a four year scholarship at Capitol University, for having been the honor student scholastically throughout his entire high school career. Also Paul won first place in the Peace Contest conducted under the auspices of the local Order of Eastern Stars. We are proud of Paul.

Isabelle BeVier, a Senior, won a scholarship at Heidelberg College for having rendered so efficiently two vocal solos. This was a great accomplishment, as other contestants came from schools much larger than Plymouth, and also from other states. We congratulate you, Isabelle.

Proving that not all good things come from larger places, Ruth Franklin, a Junior, entered the State District Commercial Contest conducted at Tiffin and came out first. We are proud of you Ruth, and are sure that more honors will come our way from your being one of us. Congratulations, Ruth.

The Girl Reserves was organized this year under the supervision of Miss Summer and Miss Bancroft. The Seventh, Eighth and Ninth grades organized the Junior Girl Reserves and the Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth grades formed the High School Girl Reserves. The High School Organization has proven to be very active in the past year along with the regular program. They decorated the auditorium for the Basketball Banquet. It was very attractively done with balloons of various colors.

At the meetings, the girls discussed many subjects that were of interest to them. Some of the most outstanding ones were "Friendship," "The Ideal Girl," and "Personality."

The presiding officers for the year were: Pres. Agnes Anderson, Vice President, Ruth Franklin, Secretary, Jeanette Hamilton and Treasurer Lucille Echelbarger. Next year's officers are President, Sylvia Turson; Vice President, Gertrude Echelbarger; Secretary, Beulah Dawson and Treasurer, Jeanette Echelbarger.

THIS GROUP HAS GROWN CONSTANTLY FROM ITS EARLY INCEPTION. LIKE THE ORCHESTRA, IT HAS HAD ITS PART IN OUR DEVELOPMENT. MR. ALT HAS LABORED WITH US CONSTANTLY IN ORDER THAT WE MIGHT BRING CREDIT TO OUR ALMA MATER.

ORCHESTRA

THIS is one of the new organizations of our school. Under the able leadership of our instructor, Mr. Basil Alt, we have come from naught to a very capable musical group. The part taken by these young artists in our musical program, and commencement exercises, cannot be evaluated. A number of seniors participated in the programs. We, who are graduating, wish that others will carry on in this enterprise of culture.

BASKETBALL SQUADS

Displaying an excellent brand of basketball, the Pilgrims romped off with the championship trophy in the initial year of the Twin Valley League. The Varsity team boasts an unblemished record in league competition.

Plymouth got off on a discouraging start, though they exhibited worthy team work against their larger opponents. In the first two games they found themselves on the short end of the score, with a 54 to 26 defeat by Bucyrus and a 37 to 21 upset staged by Shelby. But in the first league game, the varsity showed new ability and drubbed a highly touted New Haven five 25 to 14. New Washington took the Pilgrims into camp in the next contest by a 32 to 20 count, and again in non-league circles, Plymouth found tough sledding and lost to Attica in one of the most thrilling games of the season 39 to 30.

Back in league competition the Pilgrims found clear sailing and "sunk" their rivals almost at will. The outstanding game from the spectators' standpoint was the first Greenwich game played on the opponent's court. After leading 17 to 4 at the half, Plymouth faltered and had to stave off a last minute rally and squeezed out a 24 to 23 win. Another thrilling game was the final league contest with Shiloh. Before a crowd that fairly bulged out the Shiloh gym, the Pilgrims downed their rivals, who desired to spoil their perfect record, by a 34 to 28 score.

In tournament competition the varsity did not fair so well, losing the first contest to Shiloh 41 to 35 and another in the consolation tourney to Butler 25 to 21.

The Plymouth Reserves compiled a remarkable season's record, piling up nine wins against two defeats. They won the league trophy with but a single defeat chalked up against them. The players showed promising ability and keen sportsmanship, and promise to add much to next year's varsity.

In March, a banquet and dance were held to honor the teams. Superintendent Joseph of Shiloh presented the trophies on behalf of the league. This enjoyable social function climaxed the basketball season.

Special mention should be made of the Seniors who will be lost through graduation. Clyde Lasch, acting as captain, played stellar ball all season and was high scorer in league circles. Don Fox played consistent ball throughout the season. At guard, Charles Payne performed brilliantly. Wayne Gebert showed a steady game at the center position, and Paul Fenner added plenty of pep whenever he entered the game. Bob Nimmons was outstanding at his post as guard. Dick Coe and LeRoy Briggs, the bulwark of the reserve attacks, will be greatly missed.

To Coach Maxwell goes unstinting credit for a successful season. In his first year of coaching, he displayed qualities which produce teams that show both aptness in the game and at the same time, and of greater importance, thorough sportsmanship.

OUR EXIT . . .

This is our exit as students of Plymouth High School. Many happy days have we passed here. As we gather our belongings and start down the walk over which we have trod, a feeling of sadness overwhelms us. The admonitions of our instructors, thoughts treasured, aids given, and support rendered, make us look back at the open door of opportunity. We are happy to be graduated, but sorry that "Finis" is written on our school days.

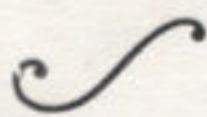

Long live Plymouth High! Au revoir, but not Good-bye.
