Due to the crowded condition of the school building this year it has been exceedingly difficult for any of the classes to do any extra work. But the Senior class, nevertheless, as every Senior class before it under took the job of producing an Annual. After many obstacles such as class plays, spring fever, and having our commerial room and equipment moved from basement to attic with stops between, the copy was finally completed.

Credit is due every member of the staff which are as follows:

We wish to thank the members of the staff for all their work and to Mr. Derr who has been our advisor and friend during our school years.

We give you our 1942 Annual and hope you enjoy it.

DEDICATION

This issue of the Mayflower is respectfully dedicated to all men in the armed forces of the United States who have been students or teachers at Plymouth High School, and to all those who may soon enter these services. Listed below are the names of those who have answered their country's call up to the time this issue of the Mayflower goes to press.

The above picture is an aerial photo of Plymouth High School and the grounds surrounding it. At present, it is the only school building we have in Plymouth. Shown in the foreground are the tennis courts, the front drive, and the lawns. In the background are the ball diamond and the Mary Fate Park. This picture was donated to the Senior Class by Thomas Root.

Our high school has undergone many changes since the old grade building was razed. This school term the grade children have used the second floor of the high school building. Our "old" commercial room and the study hall have been made into two rooms by beaver-board partitions. The Commercial Room is housing the second and third grades while the study hall houses the fifth and sixth grades, and the two remaining rooms are occupied by the fourth and first grades. The entire upper hall serves as a cloak room.

The first floor is maintained by the entire upper six grades. The auditorium serves as a study hall, music room and theatre, library and lunchroom and a "playground" on rainy days. Anything might happen here. In our lower corridor the main entrance has been partitioned off from the remaining corridor. This serves as the Senior Home Room, thus we use only the two side doors as entrances.

Although the school life is not ideal, it has worked out very successfully in view of the difficulties presented by the problem of housing the elementary grades.

In Memoriam

This page is dedicated in loving memory of Ralph L. Hoffman, a former school board member, who left this world July 15, 1941. His sudden death shocked and greatly grieved the entire village.

Mr. Hoffman better known as "Duff" was born October 31, 1891 in Jackson township, the son of Daniel E. and Alberta Pifer Hoffman. The family moved to Plymouth while he was still a boy and Mr. Hoffman lived here for the rest of his life. He attended the Plymouth school and made many youthful friendships which continued for the remainder of his life.

On June 28, 1917, he was married to Miss Helen Benedict of Utica. Shortly after his marriage he served in the army during the World War. After his return from the army, he became interested in the sale of farm equipment. Later he became the junior partner and manager of The Gugler and Hoffman Supply Co. of Mansfield. He worked untiringly in his vocation and spent most of his time traveling.

He was a devoted member of the Lutheran church, the church council, as well as being affiliated with the Lutheran brotherhood.

At the time of his death he was serving as a member of the Plymouth School Board. A position he had held for many years. He was an ambitious member and spent many hours working with other members for the good of the pupils of the Plymouth schools.

The memory of this kind and thoughtful man will live in the minds and hearts of all his many friends.

Administration

During the past school year, the Plymouth School Board has had many trying problems to face. With the Grade School children attending school at the High School, they have been confronted with problems of building the new Grade School Building, as well as the regular business of the Board. During our years in High School, they have done a fine job in directing the affairs of the school.

To Mr. Bailey, who has been our superintendent while in high school, the class of 1942 extends its sincere thanks.

E. L. Bailey, Supt.

John Root, Jr.

J. E. Hodges, Clerk

T. R. Ford

Left to Right: Ben Blanchard, Clay Hulbert, Floyd Steele, Chris Sheely

With all of Plymouth's School children housed in the High School building, it has become increasingly difficult for the janitors to maintain the order and neatness which prevailed in years before. The janitors have kept the halls and floors in neat condition and the bus drivers have maintained their daily schedules as well as transporting the athletic teams to and from their destinations. Always cheerful and pleasant, each has performed his duty with promptness and a cheery smile for everyone.

Class Will

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS: That we, the Senior Class of Plymouth High School, being in sound and disposing mind, do hereby make, declare and publish this document to be our last will and testament.

- FIRST: To the Class of 43 we leave our disease of "Senieritis" and hope that they will enjoy it as much as we have.
- SECOND: To the Class of 44, some of our senior girls to make up for your shortage.
- THIRD: To the Class of 45, our ability to get our lessens in full and on time.
- FOURTH: To the highest bidder, our sponsor for four years, Mr. Meist.
- FIFTH: To the whole world, our splendid attitude, and our desire to dedge the draft.
- SIXTH: Having nothing more of value to leave, we leave nothing.
- Amen.

The individual members of this class, with some hesitancy, wish to depart with, leave, bequeath, and bestow the following:

- To Dale Kellerhals, Gerald Scott's well-groomed hair.
- To Phyllis Miller, Helen Gewitzka's quick temper to match her red hair.
- To Mr. Bailey, Derothy Scurwine's shortness.
- To Herbert Beeching, Willard Ross' over night curls.
- To Charles Burkett, Vance Heffman's seat on the bench beside Coach Dunham.
- To Adriana Francens, La Venne Barker's knack of taming the Kentucky boys.
- To Robert Garrett, Edna Hackett's large and mannish figure.
- To Charles Amick, Junior Lasch's height.
- To Mr. Meist, Luella Vandervert's old glasses.
- To Mr. Griest, Juanita Ruckman's chewing gum.
- To Jim Neely, Marilyn Earnest's big brown eyes.
- To Caroline Fenner, Jean Derr's short blushes.
- To Martha Jean Beer, Evelyn Burkett's shyness.
- To Clay Hulbert, Jimmy Cunningham's great speed.
- To Genevieve Jacobs, Maxine Ream's ability for talking.
- To James Feters, Ray Ford's interest in Shelby.
- To Dumbe Day, Ed Croy's little ears.
- To Pat Bettac, Ruth BeVier's dark red finger-nail polish.
- To Dick Wharton, some of Jee Moore's excess.
- To J. B. Jr., Dick Rule's ability to argue with J. B. Sr.
- To the seventh grade, Clarabell Jacobs' interest in history.
- To Evelyn Moore, Delores Bettac's ability to be to scheel on time.
- To George Shaffer, Clyde Huebarger's whiskers.
- To Pee Wee Biller, "I love to wind my mouth up, and I love to hear it go." Jane Lippus.

In witness thereof, we the Class of 1942, on this 28th day of May, 1942, do order our President and Secretary to set their hands to this immortal document, as a testimony of our sincerity and good faith,

Class Prophecy

As I was appointed by the Class of 1942 to make an extensive survey of our class members twenty years hence, I decided that since it might be difficult for us to get together at that time, the wise plan would be to do some crystal gazing. Now if you will concentrate, keep your eyes on the crystal and follow me.

The fog is lifting and our travel begins at the Cleveland Airport. We have just enough time, before the plane takes off, to stop for breakfast at the "Early Lunch". Due to the earliness of the morning, the owner, arriving late as usual, waits on the service. We find the owner is one of our old classmates, Delores Bettac.

The plane is on the runway, with motor humming for the take off. Our scene changes to California, land of opportunity. We are met at the airport, given the key to the city and invited to lunch by the Mayor, Willard Clare Ross, Jr. another classmate of ours. From our chat with Mayor Ross, we learn that quite a few of our classmates have now acquired positions in California.

Willard acting as guide takes us to the great office of Paro-Metro Film Incorporation in Hollywood. They are working on the play, "As I Remember You" written and directed by James Cunningham along with his ever able secretary, Ruth BeVier. Jim has just been awarded the Paro-Metro Bell Prize for the best musical production of the year.

Now looking into Arizona, we find the W. P. A. Government Project finished on the new seven lane highway. Our dodge is the first car to arrive at the end of the road and we are congratulated by the construction engineer, Edward Croy. His ace W. P. A. worker or Shovel-Pick-Up is Clyde Heubarger.

Next we see a group of boy scouts in kakhi in the desert parts in Arizona. You'll be surprised when you find out who the scout master is. It's Ray Ford. He probably thought it was a draft questionnaire he was filling out.

There is a great celebration going on over in Texas, land of Texas grapefruits. Millions are gathered to be on hand. The queen and her attendants are their. Don't you recognize the queen as a friend of ours? I do because its none other than Jean Derr, surrounded in branches from grapefruitstrees, where hidden now and then are tiny grapefruits. While on her right, we notice a well attitude girl, Marilyn Earnest.

We go to Chicago to find Jane Lippus, the very successful owner of Housing Construction Incorporation. Jane is completing a job with the government in advertising the new two-wheel, streamlined trailer and attachments for bicycles.

Visiting Rockfellar Center in New York, in neon signs we see that Helen Gowitzka has been appearing recently in the Metropolitan Opera as guest of the great opera star, Dick Rule. There success as classical singers has reached a great height since they graduated from Plymouth High School.

In New Castle, Pennsylvania we find Clarabell Jacobs a clerk in the Greyhound Bus Station. Across the street is a beauty parlor where bus drivers have their faces polished up to look nice for the long strenuous trips. Right now the once captain of basketball, Junior Lasch is having a manicure by a manicurist named Evelyn Burkett along with the help of the owner, Juanita Ruckman.

Shifting to the southeastern coast we find ourselves in the Capital city of Washington D. C. Having been here before in 1941, we are well acquainted with the city. When coming into Washington D. C. we are requested to have our finger prints taken. Arriving at the Bureau of Investigation, we learn that Vance Hoffman and his helpmate, Joe Moore are now investigators. Vance is closing up on a Nazi spy long wanted by the department. We say Joe is his helpmate because of the shortage of metal in making bullet proof vests.

Zooming over the Ozarks, flying low, we see Gerald Scott marooned in the mountains with his best friend, himself.

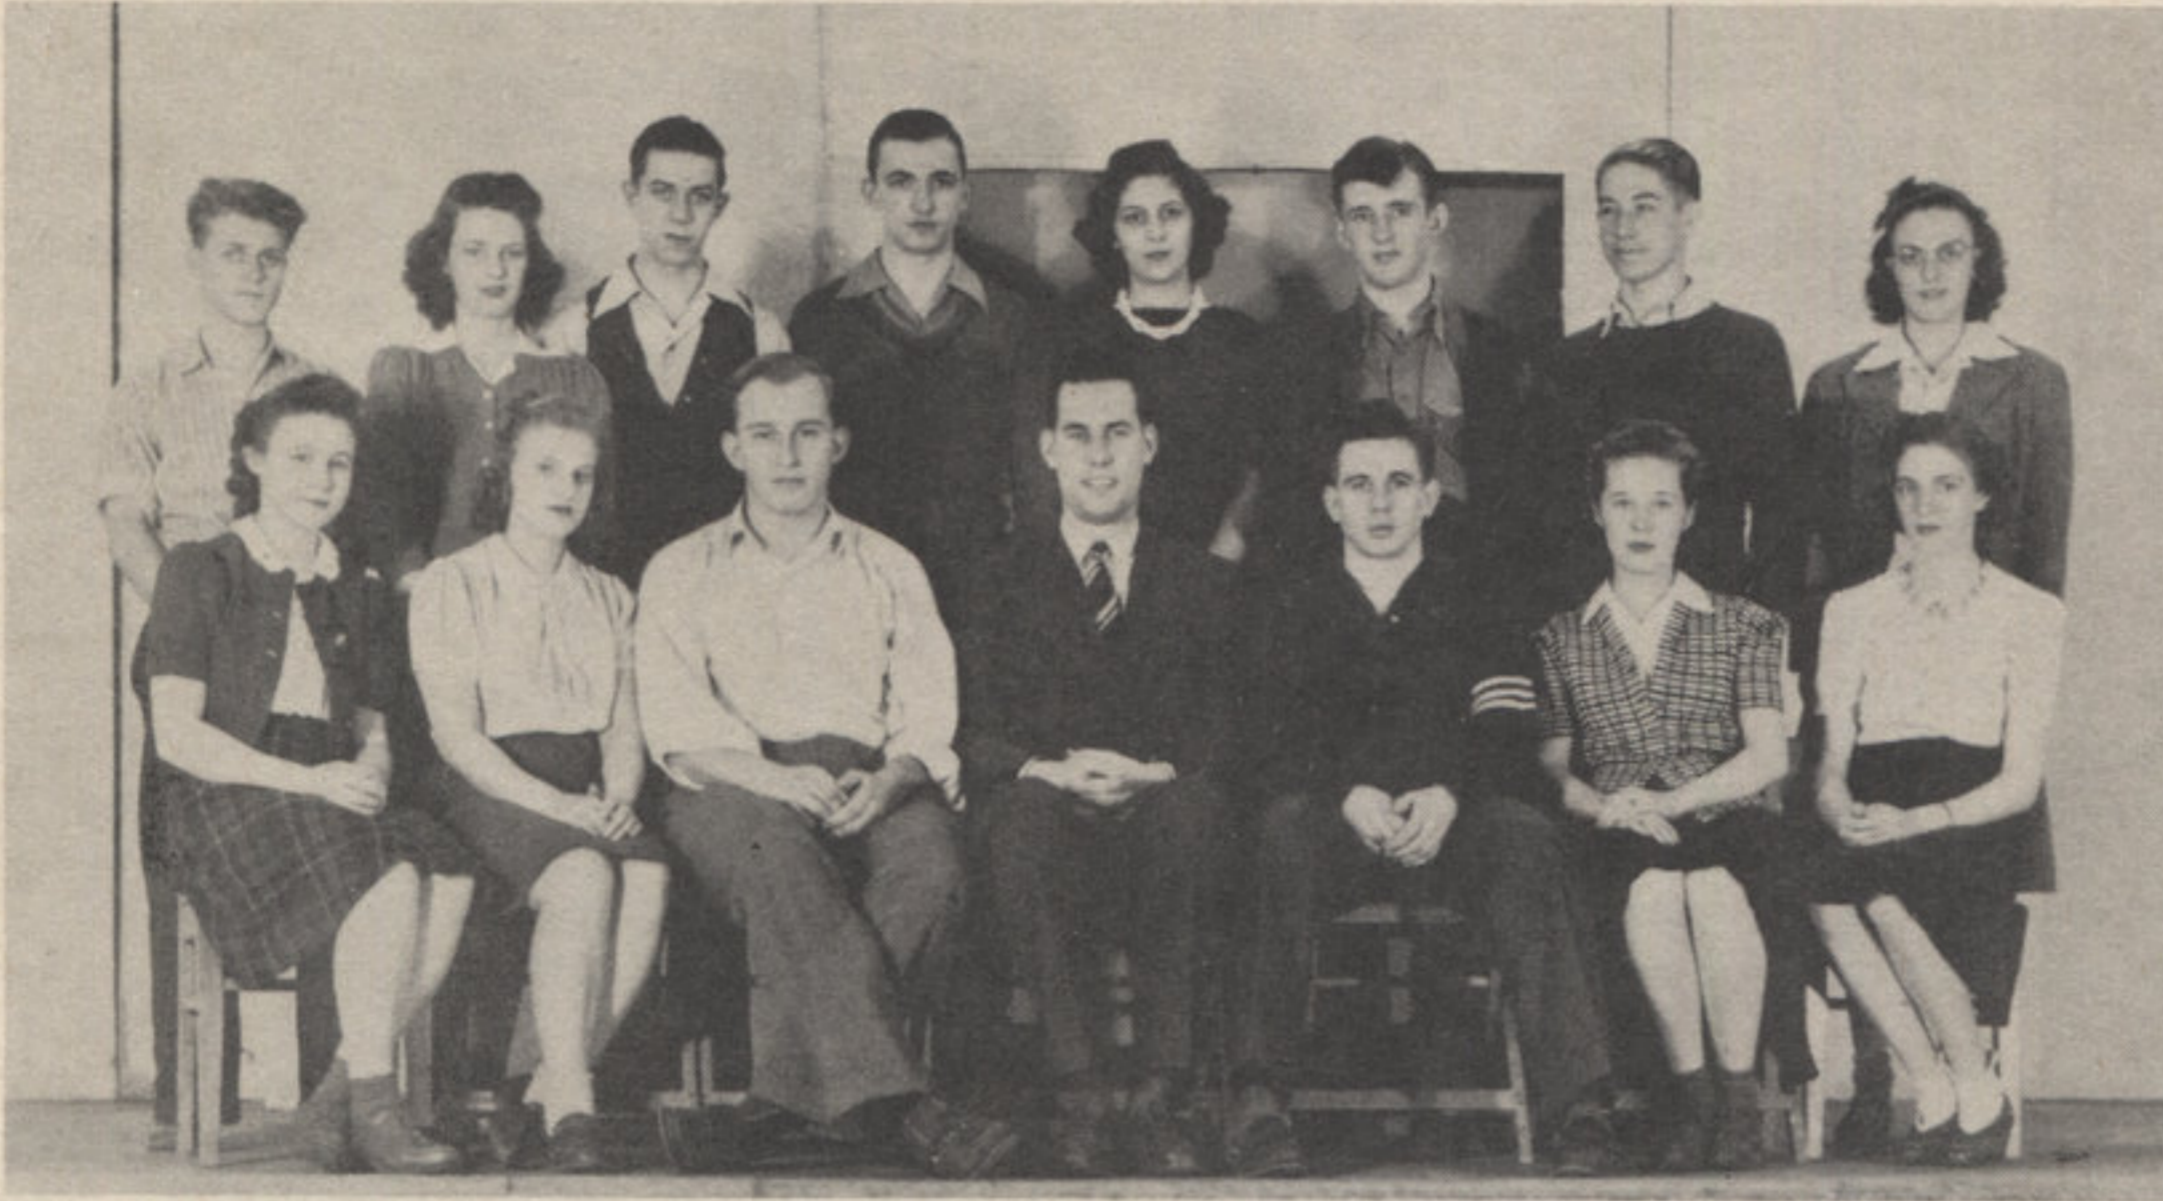

Operating a "Come Back Again" health resort in Tampa, Florida we see Luella Vandervort and her assistant, Dorothy Sourwine. Dorothy is one of those combinations assistants, nurse, secretary, and companion all mixed into one.

As for the rest of our classmates, we see sailing the uncharitable sea of matrimony, La Vonne Barker now residing in the home of the blue grass, good old Kentucky. Along with La Vonne is Maxine Ream, now residing in the suburban parts of California near Hollywood.

As for the writer of this story, Edna Hackett, I have always wanted to succeed in composing short stories, and I leave it up to my readers to see whether or not I have succeeded.

The Senior Class Play "Lunatics at Large" presented Thursday night, April 23, at the High School Auditorium proved to be tops in audience appeal. The largest crowd to see a class play in Plymouth in many years acclaimed it's outstanding entertainment as it ran the gamut from thrills and chills to the most hilarious scenes imaginable. Each member of the cast seemed perfectly to fit the character he was impersonating and took evident enjoyment in trying to do it to his ability.

Mr. Moist, our class sponsor, is deserving of great praise for his splendid direction of the play and expert make up of the cast.

Our Trip To Washington D.C.

During our Junior year we raised funds by various means in order to finance a trip to Washington, D.C. Magazine subscriptions were sold by both the Juniors and the Seniors. Our class sold candy at noons, and at all the basketball and football games we sold hot dogs. Both classes sponsored several movies, and, through the cooperation of the town people, did quite well on them. The Junior class had a dance which netted a good profit. Each student paid his share of the remaining amount we needed, and we were over the money hurdle.

At about 6 o'clock on Monday morning, June 6, our party began to assemble on the square. Everyone finally arrived, and we were ready to start by about 6:30. That first morning was spent mainly in sleep. We ate breakfast and changed bus drivers at New Castle, Pa., where Tommy Rice took over for the rest of our trip. A short stop was made at Indiana, Pa. for lunch. The group arrived in Gettysburg, got their guide, and viewed the battlefield before dinner. We saw much of the field and our guide practically fought the battle over for us. At 9:30 we reached the Ebbit Hotel, where we were to stay while in Washington.

Everyone got up early and ate their breakfast at the hotel, where all our meals were served, and then left for the Bureau of Printing and Engraving. Here we saw bills of large denominations stacked in huge piles. Our party was shown the methods of printing and engraving. At the Academy-Science Building everyone tried out about all the inventions in the place. Our next stop was the Pan American Union Building where we went into the Hall of the Americas and walked down the impressive Gallery of Flags and Heroes. We did not get to see the White House, except from a distance, as the Ball Room was being repaired.

After lunch the group drove through Arlington National Cemetery, and then on to Lee's Mansion, which is, as most of us agreed, more beautifully furnished than Mount Vernon. Stops were made at Lincoln Memorial and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where many pictures were taken. Then we drove along the wooded Potomac to Mount Vernon. We spent much time there, going through the mansion, seeing the beautiful gardens, visiting George and Martha Washington's tomb, and sending cards from the private post office in the kitchen. When the party returned from Mount Vernon the Lincoln Memorial and the Congressional Library were visited. The main points of interest there were the original Declaration of Independence, Constitution of the U.S. and the Gutenberg Bible. In the evening the students, as well as the chaperons, were free to do much as they pleased. Many went to shows, while others just lounged around.

The third day we started at the new Supreme Court Building. The group toured the U.S. Capitol, Senate, House, Supreme Court, and the President's room. All of us visited the F.B.I. where we learned much about fingerprinting.

After lunch the party motored to Annapolis, about 36 miles from Washington, where the U.S. Naval Academy took their full attention. Everyone went aboard a training ship and saw how the men live. We went through the beautiful Academy Chapel, under which John Paul Jones is buried. After returning to Washington, we ate dinner and then the whole party enjoyed a 3 hour sail on the Potomac.

We arose early on our fourth and last day in the capital. It was rather cloudy and wet, the only bad day we had. The group went to the top of the Washington Monument. The view from there was hampered by bad weather, but even so, you could see a great distance. Most of the students made a hurried dash through the National Art Gallery, but some tried to see every exhibit. The last thing the party saw that morning was the Smithsonian Institute and the National Museum. There is enough in that one spot to take your full time for at least a week. Some spent the afternoon packing while others dashed about in the rain doing some shopping.

We ate our last meal we were to have at the Ebbit, and then gathered our belongings together. Everyone scrambled for the front seats in the bus and our long journey home had begun. Cat naps were about all the sleep anyone got, and even those were interrupted by singing and just plain pestering. 8 o'clock on Friday saw a tired by happy crowd tumble out of the bus on the square in Plymouth. The long planned for and thoroughly enjoyed trip was over.

Junior - Senior Prom

The Junior Senior Prom was held on the evening of Mayll, amid impressive decorations and arrangements at the High School Auditorium beginning at 7 o'clock. Blue and white, the Senior Class colors, at the north end of the auditorium formed an alcove which shut off the balance of the auditorium to represent a portico. The table decorations also were in the Senior Class colors, and large burning tapers in blue and white were placed on each end.

A dinner consisting of three courses beginning with fruit cocktail, wafers, chicken and biscuits, mashed potatoes, peas, salad, desert, coffee, rolls and butter, relish dishes, etc, etc, was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian Church to approximately 60 guests.

The program of the evening was in charge of the Junior's President, Miss Franciene Fortney, who welcomed the Senior Class and members of the Faculty to the banquet and dance. Vance Hoffman, President of the Senior Class made an eloquent response. Herbert Beeching, as toastmaster announced the balance of the program which consisted of "What the Stars Tell Me," and "Did You Get It"? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ? ?

LA MAR FLEAGLE

In The United States Service

Our class mates, Bill Feters, Charles West and Ted Roberts, who are now in the service of our country, all enlisted in the U. S. Navy and were sworn in on December 28, 1941 at Cleveland, Ohio. Bill Feters who has always been interested in electricity has already become a Petty Officer in the radio field. We know they will all three go far in the Navy.

Then Mr. Fleagle enlisted in the U. S. Army and was inducted on January 28, 1942 at Fort Ben Harrison, Indiana, exactly one month later. At present Mr. Fleagle is attending Aircraft Warning School at Camp Crowder, Missouri, continuing his vocation as an instructor.

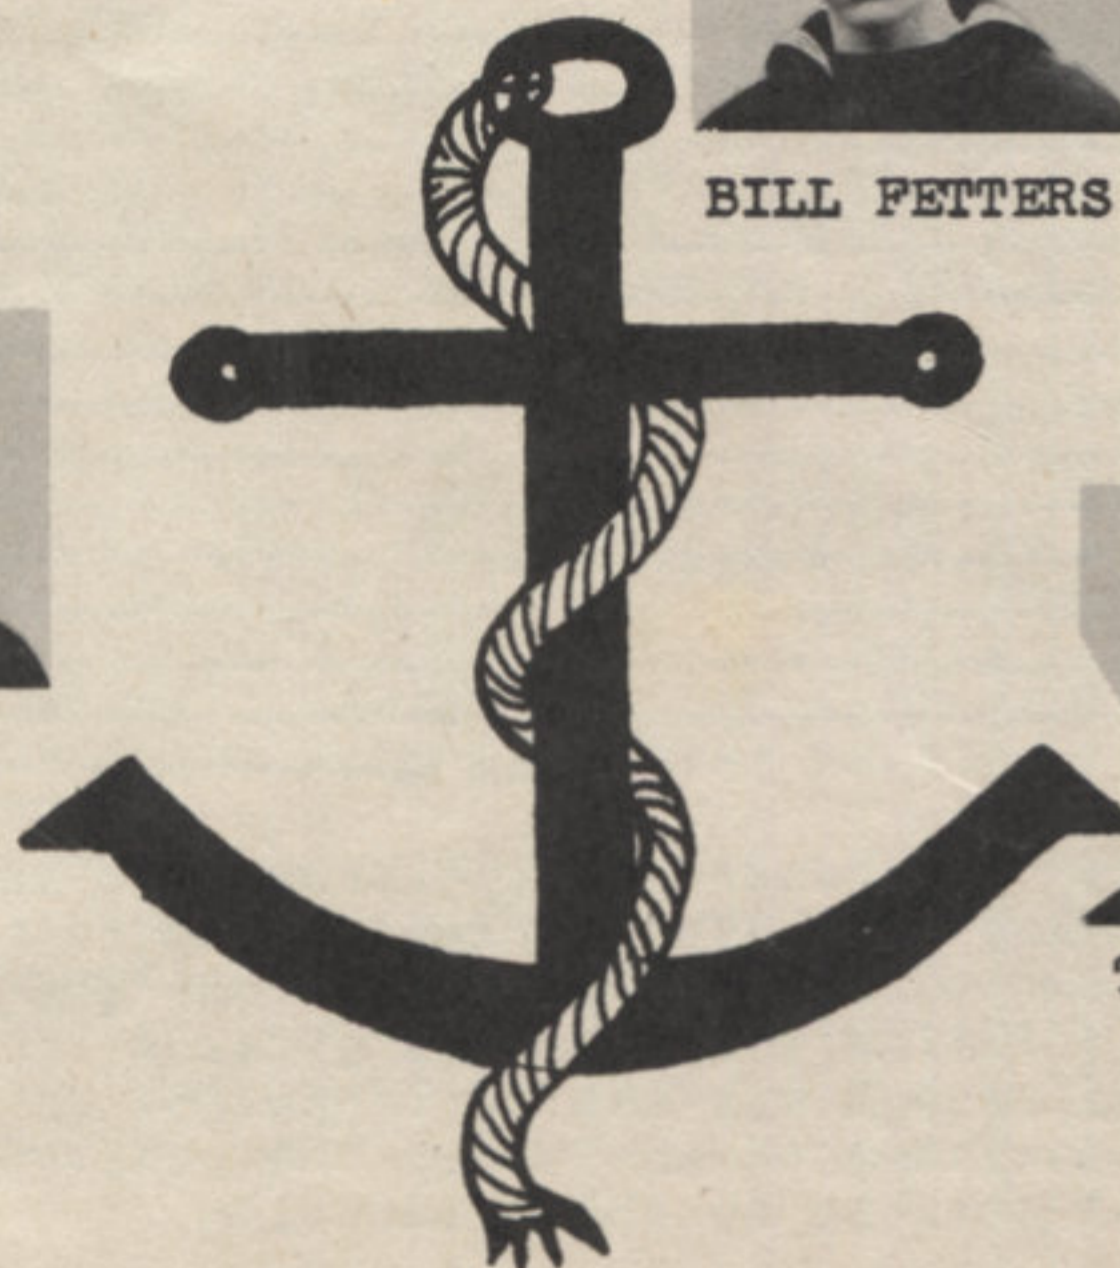

In Honor of these men, and in appreciation of their services to us and companionship with us, we, the Junior Class of Plymouth High School, wish to dedicate this page.

"Comin' Thru the Rye," was successfully presented March 26 by the Junior's as their class play. The largest crowd to attend a play in many years was on hand to see the presentation. The cast was extremely well chosen and each Junior took evident pleasure in portraying his character. The stage, which was set to represent an old-fashioned hotel, lent much atmosphere to the play. The make-up and the costumes of the players added greatly to the production.

The P. H. S. band furnished music between acts. The play was under the direction of Sherman Moist.

"MY COUNTRY"

The level plains, the lefty peaks,
 And the spreading forests grand,
 As one to me through nature speaks
 Throughout my native land,

'Twas made by men of years gone by,
 Who brought us fame untold,
 And set our Nation's name on high,
 These daring men of old.

They planted grain on the rolling plain
 And tamed the forest wild,
 Till love didst reign this vast domain,
 And all was peace and mild.

I love those men who did so much
 To make our nation free,
 I think that we should do that much
 To keep our liberty.

So let us all look up and pray,
 That our country still shall be
 Free, throughout each coming day,
 With Life, Love, and Liberty.

IN MEMORIAM

We, the Plymouth Alumni Association, wish to dedicate this page in memory of Captain Elmer L. Parsel a beloved member of our Alumni who lost his life in an airplane accident in the vicinity of Karachi, India on April 2, during World War II.

Captain Parsel who was better known as "Benny" was born in Plymouth September 18, 1906, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Parsel, grew up in Plymouth and graduated with the Class of 1924. He possessed a very pleasing personality which won him many friends, a love for flying and a determination to make a mark for himself.

Taking up flying in 1925 Captain Parsel started an air career in which he rapidly rose to a valued place in our country's air service, and which took him over half way around the world. In 1937 he took a refresher course at Randolph and Kelly Fields. He signed up for service with the Air Corps and was instructor and test pilot for some time in the various air fields in the west.

In October, 1941 Captain Parsel was transferred to the Far East. It was at the outbreak of World War II that he saw immediate air action, and for his courage, determination and skill as pilot of a bomber which took part in a raid on Japanese transports and supply bases in Lingayen Gulf, he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. He had seen service in practically every portion of the Southwest Pacific, and he brought down more than one Jap bomber and sank more than one Jap sea-fighting craft.

Captain Parsel's display of his flying ability had always won admiration for his skill in handling a plane and death came to him while he was performing his duty for his country. To us, his gallantry shall always be a shining emblem of true Americanism of which we are proud.

R. Byron Griest

During the three years Mr. Griest has been with us, music has become a part of the school program instead of apart from it. Projects such as operettas, recitals, county festivals, and a band have been successfully undergone. Our school was well represented in the county and then in the state contests, a thing never before accomplished by Plymouth students.

In this, his last year, for he has been called to the army, Mr. Griest planned his music program as successfully as was possible; but due to certain restrictions he was unable to carry them all out. He has created a respect and admiration for music that we did not have before and has given us a better understanding of musical composition. The interest he has built up should not be lost, and the music teacher next year must be able to protect that interest.

And so, in respect for you and gratitude for what you have done, Mr. Griest, we sincerely wish for you a musical success and all the happiness possible in the future.

The music program has suffered greatly this year due indirectly to the war and the crowded conditions in the high school. Since the auditorium became part study hall and part class room it has been difficult for Mr. Griest to conduct musical entertainment of any kind. He arranged and directed a Music Chapel, however, to which the public was invited. This program, presented Feb. 6, included selections from the band and the Mixed Chorus; a number by the Trio, which is composed of Mary Alice Weller, Juanita Ruckman, and Luella Vandervort; two piano solos and a piano duet.

The Spring Festival, held May 15, included both the grade and high school music organizations. The theme, built around patriotism, was carried out in songs of the famous periods in American History from Colonial times to our present Crisis.

After Coach Dunham's boys went through weeks of practice, Plymouth opened their 1941 football season at Huron on September 26.

Plymouth's football squad had a mediocre season with two defeats, three victories and one tie, defeating Shiloh twice and North Fairfield once, then losing to Huron and North Fairfield and tying Castalia.

This year the Pilgrims lose some of their most able players in Joe Moore, Jack Hoffman, Junior Lasch, Willard Ross, Dick Rule and Jimmy Cunningham. These boys have been playing for three seasons and have helped earn Plymouth prestige in football.

Joe Moore

Bob Ross

Rule led the boys in scoring this season, with 41 points. Cunningham was second with 30 points, and Lasch third with 21 points.

Jim Rhine

Sid Thomas

Jim Kennedy

Moore furnished the team with line power, while Hoffman played a good game at center, and the Ross brothers, along with Rhine, played the leading roles

All these boys graduate this year, except Bob Ross and Jim Rhine, who with Thomas will form the nucleus of next year's team.

The rest of the boys gave the regulars a fight to hold their position and these boys deserve a lot of credit for the success of the regulars. The reserves included Willford, Kennedy, Tom Cunningham, and Biller.

Jim Crockett and Junior Marvin served as managers this year and should have special credit for keeping the dressing room in good condition and helping the boys to keep in condition.

Plymouth had a successful season this year in that they beat Shiloh twice. The first game was played on a muddy gridiron at Shiloh, Plymouth winning by the score of 13-6, while the second game was played on a dry field. Plymouth also won that one by the score of 50-34.

The Pilgrims closed the season by playing North Fairfield on November 6.

P. H. S. HAS GOOD SEASON

The Plymouth Pilgrims enjoyed one of their best years in the 1941-42 season; they had a record of 11 wins and 4 losses, or a .733 percentage. The start of the year was not very bright, the Pilgrims dropping the first two and then coming back to win nine straight. In doing this they took the two teams that defeated them earlier in the season. The next defeat was at the hands of Madison, a Class A club and one more to Butler, League champs. The Pilgrims went into the tournament as one of the favorites but were defeated by Lucas in the first game. In the two leagues the Red and White came out on top in the Twin Valley and second place in Richland County. This year there will be a loss of four first stringers; Junior Lasch, who acted as captain for the season, Dick Rule, Joe Moore and Vance Hoffman. Bill Reed, a forward, had the honor of being high scorer for the county. The Junior Varsity won 13 out of their 15 games, consequently Plymouth is looking forward to another good team next year.

Cheer Leaders

The cheer leaders of Plymouth High School are to be complimented on the good work that they have done this year. At every game they were always there to lead the cheering section, yelling at the top of their voices and putting all their energy into the actions. Well do the team know how many games was pulled out of the fire by the three cheer leaders that wouldn't give up. This is leadership in action and what leadership this trio displayed during the 1941-42.
