In Memory Of Our Classmate, Dixie Huston

To Dixie

By Julie Chinchock

The feeling can be dulled and the damage can be weakened
 The silence that took over was deafening.
 Sobs in the darkness and cries full of pain.
 Only one of us doesn't remain.
 "I like the way you walk," I said.
 "I like the way you talk," you said.
 But something was missing in your heart.
 Something that caused this flight of yours.
 One minute was all it took, one decision was what it shook.
 The fury, the force, the fear you must have felt.
 "I don't know where I belong, so I'll just melt."
 Softer now the hours slowly shift away.
 Down another path of the sifting gray.
 To you, the one I knew, the one who can hear this now.
 I will remember you, I fell a loss for you.
 You will never fade away.....

A Message From The Principal

It has been said that your high school days are a time of discovery, self-awareness and charting of your future. Wherever you are now in life, you may want to thank the teachers and role models in your life for the person that you have become.

The way you handle stress and pressure from your job, family and lifestyle in direct relation to how you handled the stress and pressure from succeeding in high school. Everywhere you went, while a member of Plymouth High School, there were lessons to be learned, some a tad more subtle than others, but always a lesson to be learned.

I would like to thank you for the opportunity to have served you as principal these past three years. It has been an honor and privilege to have been a small part of your life and to have helped shape who you are today. I have learned just as much from this student body as any college professor could have ever taught me. You're a good group of hard working, respectful, young adults that will make a positive impact on this community soon and for years to come.

I wish you all the best of luck in your future endeavors. Please remember "Age Quad Agis!" (Do well in all that you do.)
