ARE BEAUTIFUL.
NOT IN LOOKS.
NOT IN WHAT THEY SAY.
JUST IN WHAT THEY ARE.

Champions do not become champions
when they win the event,
but in the hours, weeks, months and years
they spend preparing for it.

*On March 13, Pope Francis became the first pope to emerge from Latin America.

*The following month on April 15, two homemade bombs ripped through the crowd of fans and runners at the Boston Marathon finish line, killing three and wounding nearly 300 others.

*On May 11, the nation heard a 911 call 10 years in the making, when Amanda Berry revealed that she, Michelle Knight and Gina DeJesus had been kidnapped and held captive by Ariel Castro in Cleveland.

*Former South African president and leader of the anti-apartheid movement Nelson Mandela died on Dec. 5. World leaders and celebrities were among the millions who paid tribute to the civil rights hero when he was laid to rest last Sunday.

*Actor Paul Walker was killed in a car crash on Nov. 30, devastating friends, family and his millions of fans. His "Fast and Furious" co-stars Tyrese Gibson and Vin Diesel both visited the crash site in Southern California. Hollywood also lost beloved actors, Cory Monteith and James Gandolfini, last summer.

*Prince William and Duchess of Cambridge Kate Middleton welcomed a son, Prince George, on July 22. While the baby prince kept the world waiting for weeks, Kim Kardashian and Kanye West's baby girl, whom they named North West, arrived on June 15.

*Taking "selfies" and posting them to social media was all the rage this year.

*The world learned countless new words in 2013. People took endless "selfies" for Instagram, and the word "selfie" even became Oxford dictionary's "Word of the Year." Also added to dictionaries was the word, "twerk" and "derp."

*Everyone can thank Miley Cyrus for taking twerking mainstream in August at the MTV Video Music Awards. She danced alongside Robin Thicke, who performed his song "Blurred Lines," another 2013 addiction.

*The Geico camel commercial made many eager for Wednesday to come along so they could yell "Hump Day!" to anyone in sight.

*One of the year's biggest addictions was playing the game Candy Crush. Candy Crush became 2013's most popular game on Facebook, with 46 million average monthly users. People loved it so much that they didn't mind paying the extra fee to bypass difficult levels: the game nets almost $1,000,000 a day.

*Miley Cyrus had her hit "Wrecking Ball" on the top of Billboard music charts, and a Saturday Night Live hosting gig while Grumpy Cat went from being an online sensation to a newspaper and magazine cover cat.

*The cast of "Duck Dynasty" made its way into America's hearts with its family dynamics and famous long beards, and another show, "Scandal," made its star, Kerry Washington, 2013's top cover girl.

*The 2014 Sochi Winter Olympics Begin (Feb. 7): Despite threats of terrorist attacks, complaints about poor preparations and the international condemnation over their anti-gay law, Russia kicks off the costliest Olympic Games in history with an opening ceremony filled with music, floats and a light show using the most advanced technology available. The opening ceremony is mostly glitch free, although one of the five floating Olympic rings fails to open. The 2014 Winter Games close with an impressive ceremony, including Russia poking fun at its five floating ring opening ceremony malfunction. Despite the controversies and terror threats, the Sochi Games are incident free and a success. Russia leads the final medal count with 33, following by the United States with 28, and Norway with 26.

*The Seattle Seahawks Win First Super Bowl in Franchise History (Feb. 2): The Seattle Seahawks beat the Denver Broncos, 43-8, to win their first Super Bowl championship in franchise history. It is also the first championship win for head coach Pete Carroll who previously coached the New York Jets and New England Patriots. Carroll becomes only the third coach to have won both a Super Bowl and a college national championship. The other two coaches to do so are Jimmy Johnson and Barry Switzer.

*Group Knife Attack Kills 29 in China (Mar. 1): Twenty-nine people are killed when ten men enter a train station in Kunming, a city in southwest China. The men attack people with long knives, injuring 130 others. Chinese authorities believe the attackers are members of a separatist group from Xinjiang in northwest China and refer to them as terrorists.
